D. C. Redevelopment

Plans May Be Scrapped

By FRANK LaPIERRE

There are strong indications circulating around Daly City official circles that the city council, in its role as Redevelopment Agency, will soon scrap its plans for redevelopment after some three years of studies into the controversial issue, Sept. 24.

This move is partly prompted by mounting opposition to the redevelopment proposal by residents of the so-called "project area" adjacent to the Knowles Avenue Bay Area Rapid Transit station.

It is expected to be made official within two weeks, The Post learned.

Contacted on the matter Councilman Bernard J. "Bud" Lycett said he was taking a "long hard look" at the matter in the wake of this week's council action on amendments to the city's General Plan which would have paved the way for enactment of redevelopment.

The council's lopsided action Monday on the matter "turned off" some councilmen, the Post learned.

Although all five councilmen were present at the Monday meeting in which action was to be taken on the General Plan amendments only three could vote.

This resulted from the fact that Councilmen Lycett and McRobert Stewart were out of town during last week's public hearing on the matter and were not available when the hearing on redevelopmnent was closed.

When the final vote came, Mayor Anthony Giammona, who in the past has opposed redevelopment, and Councilman Victor Kyriakis cast "aye" votes for the amendment.

Councilman PaulHupf, who in the past had voiced support for redevelopment voted against the amendment.

The overflow crowd attending the city session last Monday expressed bewilderment at the council action.

Conrad Pavellas, longtime foe of redevelopment and co-chairman of the Original Daly City Protective Association, said the council was no longer "responsive to our needs" and he waved a copy of the United States Constitution in the air as his supporters cheered him on.

Councilman Kyriakis said it was this presentation, "perhaps more than any other," that made him reconsider the earlier actions.

"If they (the people in the area) truly fear this redevelopment as some sort of ogre, and that it will be to the public detriment, then I am going to seriously reconsider my earlier posture on this issue," he said.

Hupf who voted against the amendment in the wake of his earlier statements supporting redevelopment said the city planning staff" has not proven to me that blight exists in that area."

"They appear to be using this general plan amendment as a vehicle to push through redevelopment rather than substantiate that blight exists (there). They certainly have the proof, I'm sure, and why they have failed to bring it before us is anybody's guess. I consider this an inadequate report," Hupf said.

He had made similar statements during the Monday night meeting.

Mayor Giammona said he had "always been against redevelopment, but felt he was representing the majority of the Board on the issue.

"At least I felt that way until Monday. Now I learn this is not true, that there are those on the council who do not want this redevelopment, and in light of that I am all for dropping the

City Asked To OK Roller Skate Rink

South San Francisco toy store owner Ambrose Del Vecchio asked the city council Monday night to approve a roller skating rink on city-owned land.

The site he requested is a portion of the Airport Boulevard frontage of the South San Francisco-San Bruno Sewage Treatment Plant.

Del Vecchio offered to build the skating rink, at an estimated cost of $125,000, and operate it for 15 years, at which time the building would revert to ownership of the city. The city could either operate it, lease it to the Del Vecchios, or convert it to another use.

He explained that with the current price of land, there is no other way in which a roller skating rink can be built in a suburban, or urban area and charge admission fees low enough to attract patrons.

DEL VECCHIO and his wife had owned Skateland, at San Francisco's Playland at the Beach for 16 years, until the rink was closed by the developer who bought Playland. It was the last roller skating rink in San Francisco, he said. The nearest one now is in San Mateo.

He explained that he appeared before the council because the city staff had turned down his proposal after a year of negotiations.

He said he was told by the city staff a report from San Mateo County would force South San Francisco to use the remainder of the 12-acre sewer plant site for expansion of its water treatment facilities. However, Del Vecchio claimed that there would still be room for his roller rink which would take up no more room than one or 1-and-one-half acres.

Councilmen appeared to be sympathetic.

Frank Mammini said that he was disturbed at plans to place "a ponding area on our major boulevard . . . with its million-dollar hotels and restaurants."

ACTING City Manager Ed Alario said he and other staff members would have no objections to building the rink on the proposed site if it could be done without forcing the city to buy more land.

The matter was laid over for a council study session tonight.

Del Vecchio, who owns Toy Fair in the Brentwood Shopping Center, brought with him to the meeting copies of letters from representatives of local churches, P-TAs, service clubs, and women's clubs as well as individuals. The letters maintained that the rink would bring inexpensive recreation to South San Francisco.

Police Refuse Offer

South San Francisco's City Council — in the words of one member who did not want to be identified — had made the Police Association a wage "offer they could not refuse."

They did, this week, however, according to Acting City Mgr. Ed Alario, yesterday.

Police, however, made a counterporoposal, which the mediator asked Alario to transmit to City Council. The Council is expected to consider the Police Association proposal at an executive session, sometime during the regular session Monday night.

The city has settled with all the other employes but the Police Association has been holding out for different terms.

Under state law, the amount of the wage offers and wage demands are kept secret. At a recent city council meeting, police negotiator Chris Burdick said that the two sides were not far apart, that the total amount was not so much the bone of contention but the way the money would be distributed.

Colma Creek Project

Contract Signing Expected

One of the most unusual contracts..... Contracts ever awarded by an Upper Peninsula city was expected to be signed yesterday for the Colma Creek Flood Control project.

The contract is believed to be the largest one awarded locally outside the bidding process. Under the contract, S & Q Construction Co., 48 S. Linden Ave., South San Francisco, will build the interim flood control project on Colma Creek for $418,115. It is expected that the first phase of the project, removal of the Linden Avenue Bridge, will be completed by Dec. 1.

Last Tuesday, the city council rejected their single bid of $542,992 by McGuire and Hester of Oakland, and authorized the city staff to negotiate a new contract. The original estimate for the project was $355,000.

The council acted under a state law which permits cities, in the event all bids are too high, to reject them all. Such cities then — according to City Atty. John Noonan's interpretation — again can open bidding on the project. Noonan interpreted this as permitting the city to negotiate its own contract.

With last year's first disastrous rain councilmen wasted no time in reopening the bidding. They gave Fred Hull, vice president of the engineering firm, VTN, authority to negotiate. Hull had drawn the plans for the project.

VARIOUS conflicting reports on the contract circulated at Monday night's council meeting.

It was reported that McGuire and Hester had been pursuaded to lower their bid price by more than $100,000, but that the city staff felt they could get it cheaper, by negotiating with local contractors.

No explanation was given why S&Q had failed to bid in the first place.

Last week, Hull had told the council that he had been negotiating with a consortium of three local contractors. Whether S&Q represented this consortium was not clear. Hull was not available for comment.

In addition to removal of the bridge, and its replacement by a larger one, the project will also include widening of the canal, with a higher levee, between Spruce and San Mateo Avenues.

While most of the widening will be at the expense of North Canal Drive, which will become a 16-foot wide, one-way street, it will involve relocation of four small industries. Eminent domain proceedings have been filed against the mini-industrial park, including a radiator service, a battery firm and a metal polishing company.

AT MONDAY night's council meeting, Shelden Prezant, who operates an office supply and packaging firm on North Canal Street, expressed concern over starting the project so close to the rainy season, when it had been perfectly dry since April. He was also concerned over the city building the canal itself.

Acting City Manager Ed Alario assured the audience that one contractor will be responsible for the project. Noonan also revealed the city has had its previously canceled flood liability insurance reestablished, with a new ceiling of a million dollars for each separate flood.

Painter Robbed

A South San Francisco painter was robbed and kidnaped at gunpoint in downtown South San Francisco, at 10:30 a.m. yesterday.

Two men escaped with $425 in cash.

According to South San Francisco police, Paul Anthony Lopez of San Francisco cashed a check at the Bank of America at 500 Linden Ave., went to his car in the bank's parking lot, and was accosted by two men, one with a .22 caliber automatic revolver.

According to Lopez, he was forced to drive two blocks. The men took his money, then dropped him off. The car later was returned to the bank's parking lot.

Police said Azucena Bejar, 25, lost her purse and $20 in cash to a thief who ran up behind her at 8:45 p.m., on West Orange, near North Canal Street.

50 File for City Manager

A pile of 50 applications for city manager awaits the South San Francisco City Council.

Deadline on application for the office was Sunday.

Councilmen are expected to begin studying the applications this week and screening them to interview the top applicants.

Ed Alario, finance director, is currently acting city manager and himself a top contender for the post.

Also due Sunday are applications for a host of other top city posts. These vacancies are headed by the newly created post of public service director & somewhat equivalent to the post of public works director in other cities. The most urgent appointment, however, is that of city engineer.

This new city department will include six divisions: city engineer, city planner, zoning director, building inspector, director of streets and sewers, and treatment plant director. The first four divisions have no permanent heads at present, with Hugo Stoppoloni, street director, now the acting head of public services.

Other vacancies include the director of Parks and Recreation Department, and the newly authorized communications division.

Should Alario become city manager, a new vacancy, finance division head, will be created.

A Look at Pacifica on Threshold of Growth

Editor's Note: With a special referendum election facing Pacifica voters in November Peninsulans have turned their eyes to the unusual city which now has grown to more than 37,000. In a special report to the Times historian Elizabeth St. Peter gives a background of the community.)

What July 4 is to most Americans, Nov. 22, 1957 is to the citizens of Pacifica, California, San Mateo County, U.S.A.

For on that day, Pacifica emerged from the rugged, beautiful coastline beside the Pacific Ocean as a 20th century city; possibly, the most fascinating in the County.

In the 20th century which produced the women's liberation movement, Pacifica kept pace and even surged ahead.

Elected its first mayor was a woman, Jean Fassler, who had the further distinction of being the first woman mayor of a new city in the United States. Pacifica and Mrs. Fassler made national headlines besieged with a barrage of television, newspaper and radio coverage.

Pacifica evolved after a cliff-hanging hit and miss struggle dating back two centuries ago. It was then on Nov. 4, 1769 that Captain Gaspar de Portola and his Spanish expedition accidentally discovered San Francisco Bay from Pacifica's Sweeney's ridge. (Another important date celebrated with pomp and ceremony in Pacifica today.)

Joined together in the Nov. 22, 1957 incorporation were nine separate communities strung along the coastline, divided by the Coast Highway and continuing into the valleys and mountains on the south and east.

Each unique in its own way, the communities are: Edgemar, Pacific Manor, Westview (now described as the ghetto area), Sharp Park, Fairway Park, Vallemar, Rockaway Beach, Linda Mar and Pedro Point.

The present 37,500 inhabitants of Pacifica live on the scenic coast hugging the Pacific Ocean only 15 miles from San Francisco. Projected population for 1980 is 70,000.

This "gem of the ocean" is a youthful community (median age 23.2) embracing many middle-aged and senior citizens, all of a rich international mix.

It is made up of Mexican-Americans, Anglo-Americans, Italians, Portugese, Chinese, Blacks, Jews, Eastern Europeans and a few Arabs.

As zig zag as its coastline is the course of Pacifica's history.

PACIFICA, THEN

Having simultaneously discovered Pacifica and the landlocked harbor of San Francisco Bay Portola and his party elated about their discovery, charted and recorded it. They, then, existed to return later to their original destination which was Monterey Bay.

In 1785, Mission Dolores was established by the padres, who called this first outpost of civilization in San Mateo County, San Pedro.

Pacifica then became Rancho Buri Buri on Nov. 5, 1835 given in a Mexican land grant to soldier, Jose Sanchez, according to San Mateo County historian; Frank Stanger.

His son, Don Francisco Sanchez, acquired 8,926 acres of this land and built what has now become a historical landmark known as Sanchez Adobe.

Nails from a shipwreck at Pedro Point were used to secure the logs of this mission style adobe.

Completed in 1846, such illustrious company as Governor Juan B. Alvarado, John C. Fremont, William Ralston, William Sharon and Timothy Guy Phelps gathered under its roof.

Sanchez in 1842 at age 37 was named Alcade of San Francisco. He also held the posts of captain of the civil militia and captain of the port of San Francisco.

Although, he became hostile toward abuses during the American conquest of California, John C. Fremont publicly confirmed that Don Sanchez continued to be generous and hospitable.

Of special interest is the Harper's Weekly article on Abraham Lincoln and the picture of Louise Sanchez, daughter of Francisco and Theodora Sanchez given to the Society by a great granddaughter, Mrs. Rose Uribe of San Francisco.

Located in Pacifica's Vallemar District, the Adobe is open from 10 to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday. It is closed on Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day.

Around 1900, the next pioneer to arrive in Pacifica or Salada Beach, as it then was called, was a youth from Scotland, H. H. McCloskey, grandfather of Congressman "Pete" McCloskey.

"He came by horse and buggy over the mountain and down the narrow road," according to a 1972 "Pacifica Tribune" article written by long time resident Edna Laurel Calhan.

She continued: "Here for the first time, he saw cliffs towering over the ocean in rugged grandeur. Beyond, he spotted in the lowland, a sandy beach enclosed by a sleepy lagoon."

He settled in Salada Beach which early Spanish settlers had given the euphonious name of Laguna Salada.

"Its slopes were a persian carpet of color of wildflowers and flowering broom," noted Mrs. Calhan, "and well-kept ranches snuggled in little valleys" stretching back into the hillsides.

The Ocean Shore Land Company owned miles of property fronting the ocean in order to sell its land, the company built a railroad.

McCloskey became attorney for the railroad whose route must have been one of unsurpassed beauty as the train climbed up cliffs, wound around bluffs and

Non-Teaching Jobs Up

Officials of the San Mateo Community College District have admitted that the district may have increased the number of non-teaching personnel at about the same time a commitment had been made to trim administrators in the district.

The admission came in response to a study released last week by the Government Research Council of San Mateo which showed that, from 1971-72 to 1972-73, the number of administrators increased from 25.2 per 100 classroom teachers to 27.2 per 100.

Besides the one-year increase in the administrative category, the study also showed that, from 1964-65 to 1972-73, the administrative figure rose from 11.2 per 100 to 27.2, an increase of nearly 150 per cent.

Early in the 1970-71 school year, the district's board of trustees pledged to cut administrative costs by 15 per cent as an inducement to get a critical tax override passed by the county's voters.

The cuts, engineered and defined by the then chancellor, Clifford Erickson, were to have been made by the beginning of fiscal year 71-72.

However, by the end of the summer of 1971, at least one trustee was arguing that Erickson's definition of administrative cuts did not fit that of the trustees.

A commitment to economize in the administrative realm whenever and wherever possible has been implicit throughout the board's deliberations from 1970 to the present.

Though there is some argument about including some positions (like counselors, for example) in the administrative category, officials of the district stated last night that it does appear that the district has indeed added administrators in the face of a pledge not to.

Matteo Fasanaro, the district's assistant superintendent for business affairs, said the GBC study was correct. "I'd say it was about 98 to 99 per cent accurate," he remarked after a meeting of the board at the College of San Mateo.

James Tormey, one of the most vocal of Erickson's critics over the last two years, offered that, "If the figures are right, then it's a violation of the commitment we made to the voters."

He added that the board, at this time, isn't sure that the number of administrators has increased but, he pointed out, the method and definition used by the GRC to come up with an administrative figure is virtually the same one the board believes is accurate.

This is the area where Erickson got into trouble with the board two years ago. He used a certain definition to define administrative costs while the board wanted a GRC-style definition used.

Tormey noted that, "We are moving to correct the situation."

Chancellor Glenn Smith said he has not studied the report thoroughly yet.

"I've only give it a cursory examination," he stated. "But if it includes counselors and some others in a definition of administrators then it may be like comparing apples and oranges."

The chancellor has been ordered to economize in administration if it is at all possible.

Presently, Smith is working on a master list of district priorities which will bear on any such economies.

To that end, the board approved the creation of the position of a personnel specialist last night.

In other action, the trustees:

— Approved the rental of 300 square feet of extra space at 2040 Pioneer Court in San Mateo, where the district's headquarters is located. Smith told the board that his office is studying ways to have the headquarters moved onto district-owned land another pledge made to the voters of the county prior to the tax override election.

— Approved the purchase of an all-weather track for CSM. Cost of the materials and installation will be almost $154,000.

— Studied a review of the district's special program and project funding.

— Considered briefly a report on the district's cafeteria, book store and associated students operations.

The monies received during the drive are used to aid persons suffering from vision defects. All funds are returned to the community where they are collected, Guisto said.

Density Guides on Coast Approved

A density matrix to provide guidelines in determining future low density residential uses in agricultural and forestry zoned areas west of Skyline Boulevard south of Pacifica was adopted Sept. 25 by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Asst. Atty. Keith C. Sorensen said that the density restrictions will be accomplished through adoption of a master zoning plan for the coastside area.

As already approved and recommended by the County Planning Commission, the matrix provides for residential development in the affected area ranging from one dwelling unit per five acres to one unit per 40 acres, depending on existing physical circumstances such as location in relation to flood plains, steepness of the land, accessibility through existing all-weather roads, soil condition and earthquake hazard.

There was considerable comment, and some complaint, Tuesday by conservationists concerning a provision in the matrix which would give a 20 per cent land "bonus" on future developments which cluster residential units to provide that over 80 per cent of the land is held in common open space.

Developer Alan Hosking, who owns property in the Skyline area, said on the other hand, that projects which cluster should be given up to a 50 per cent bonus for facilitating services and access.

Supervisor Jean Fassler indicated she favored the matrix proposal because, when the zoning is adopted, it will permit the assessor to take a "realistic look" at property instead of having to zone for potential highest and best use.

County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe said it will be next spring before a zoning plan, including an economic impact study, will be submitted for consideration.

S.M. County Medics Own Answer Service

The San Mateo County Medical Society is establishing its own specialized medical answering service, according to the organization's Executive Director Gene C. Taylor.

The society—with a membership of 665 local doctors—plans to begin operating their new service within six months.

At the present time, the society uses a commercial answering service which is shared with many other types of businesses.

The answering service is directed primarily towards persons who do not have a personal doctor in this area and who need assistance in reaching one. An example, according to Taylor, is a traveler who is staying at a local motel and becomes ill. The society answering service would aid such a traveler in reaching a doctor to treat the illness.

Taylor said the society's new "medically oriented answering service" will provide a more professional 24-hour service.

The new answering service will be manned by one dozen "thoroughly trained operators" who will be more knowledgeable at referring particular calls to appropriate physicians, Taylor said.

A caller, for example, who does not have a local doctor and who has taken an overdose of drugs would be referred to medical authorities specializing in that type of crisis situation, according to Taylor.

The cost for implementing and maintaining the new answering service will be paid by doctors who are members of the Medical Society.

Girl, 14 Brutally Assaulted

A 14-year-old Pacifica girl was abducted at gunpoint, driven to Montara, beaten unconscious and raped shortly after noon Sept. 25, police said.

According to the police, the girl was on her way home from school when she was forced into a small foreign car at gunpoint.

Police learned that she was driven to Montara, where she was beaten with fists, and apparently pistol-whipped, and raped.

Officials said the victim managed to walk to the Coast Highway and flag down a passing motorist who drove her to her home in Pacifica.

The only description of the assailant is that he is a white male adult, police said.

City Asked To Lift Licenses

Pacifica City Council was urged to adopt an ordinance under which all service stations which join gasoline boycotts would have their license cancelled.

The proposal was greeted with scattering of applause.

City Atty. John Sherman, however, told Mayor Aubrey Lumley that the business license ordinance had no provision for canceling licenses of boycotting service stations.

Making the proposal was community leader Ken Faria of Anza Way, who complained that he had been stranded by the boycott. He pointed out that even service stations which had been asking to be allowed to rent U-Hauls had joined the boycott.

"I will now buy just a dollar's worth of gas in Pacifica," the disabled veteran declared angrily, "enough to take me to the Presidio where it is cheaper."

SM County Day Care Service Cutback Seen

San Mateo County is one of five Bay Area counties which may have day-care services for mentally and developmentally disabled adults cut off by state and federal agencies.

The counties are reportedly receiving about $5 million less money this year than last.

A total of 850 persons could be affected if the prediction of Jack McKay, director of the Human Resources Agency of Alameda County, comes true.

McKay told more than 300 persons last week at a meeting of the Area Board Five of the Planning and Advisory Board on the Developmentally Disabled that the reasons for the cutback in money are:

— A federal ceiling of $2.5 billion on social services funds.

— A new formula in this state under which the counties are allotted money.

— A homemaker service ordered by federal and state agencies that will absorb much of the available cash.

It was claimed last night that 81 people in San Francisco and Marin counties have already had their day-care services cut off.

District Problems Reviewed

The new chancellor of the San Mateo Community College District is taking a long look at the district's future needs.

Glenn Smith, who has been on the job in the three-college system for barely four months, said this week that a master plan of district priorities should be ready for examination by the board of trustees within 30 days.

Smith said he and his staff, along with representatives from other segments of the college community and the community-at-large, have winnowed down an original list of priorities to about 50 items.

Beginning next month, Smith plans to meet with representatives from the faculties, student bodies and other interested parties to pinpoint those areas which are most pressing.

He said it his aim to involve everyone with something at stake in the district's future.

He termed the effort a major undertaking.

District sources have stated that Smith's plan marks the first time any chief executive in the district has attempted such a thing.

Until now, there has never been anything resembling a master list of priorities in this district.

—A continued effort to cut administrative overhead as the cost per student in the district continues to rise.

Three Bruno Robberies

Three robberies, one involving kidnap and the arrest of two persons, were reported during the weekend by San Bruno police.

Booked in a kidnap-robbery incident happening about 4 p.m. Saturday were Clay Leon Huckins, 19, and James Michael Bayer, also 19, both giving an address of 1512 Cabrillo rillo Ave., Burlin game.

The pair was arrested on suspicion of kidnaping and robbing Michael Vernon Fredson, 23, of San Francisco, and Robert G. Gustafson, 23, of San Bruno.

Police said they still are seeking two other persons in the incident, one of them reportedly a female.

According to police, Fredson and Gustafson were taken into a car at knifepoint near Crystal Springs Road and Acacia Avenue.

They were driven to a location approximately eight miles south of Skylonda Corners on Skyline Blvd., according to police.

Authorities said the victims were beaten and thrown down an embankment after being relieved of $17.10 by their assailants, who reportedly accused the victims of having earlier stolen a motorcycle from them.

In a second robbery, also with shades ades of violence and a revenge motive, two young men were tied and kicked by their assailants in a San Bruno apartment.

Police said two men reportedly entered the apartment of Charles John Malaspina on First Ave. and tied up Malaspina and his visitor, Charles Brian Buffington of South San Francisco.

According to police, after kicking open the apartment door Sunday afternoon, one of the robbers displayed a pistol, and the second kept one hand in a jacket pocket as if to indicate he too had ad a weapon.

Police said conversations indicated that Malaspina, who reportedly sustained minor bruises to his throat and chin, was believed to have been singled out for "doing wrong" to apparent friends of the intruders.

Authorities said that after the victims were tied up with ropes supplied by the assailants, the robbers took $45 from Malaspina, $5 and a billfold from Buffington and a portable color television set before leaving.

In the third robbery, a lone bandit about 9 p.m. Saturday robbed a clerk at the Donut Mill, 293 El Camino Real, of $150 — and two donuts.

Police said the subject walked into the donut shop and ordered two donuts. When clerk Ernesto Perez bent over to fill the order he stood up to stare at the barrel of a revolver, possibly a .38-caliber, police said.

The bandit told Perez to put "the money" in the bag with the donuts.

Payments to Be Offered For Property Relocation

An ordinance providing payments of up to $15,000 for individuals, families, businesses, farm operations and non-profit corporations which have to relocate as the result of acquisition of their property for public projects was adopted Tuesday by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

The board action, required by state and federal legislation, provides for the county to contract for the services of a relocation specialist for the remainder of the fiscal year to determine the work load for such a position within the county government.

Assistant County Mgr. Earl Goodwin said that the cost of the contract would approximate the cost of the county position at $22,000 a year.

Supervisor William H. Royer expressed concern that the action "appears we're headed toward a new department."

Goodwin replied that it is doubtful that the service would require full-time in view of limited acquisitions. He anticipates that the work could eventually be handled by a full-time county employe under County Property Mgr. Robert Friday, with the employe also devoting time in the county's property acquisition program.

"It would be a constant program, but not a constant workload," the assistant manager said.

Goodwin noted in a report to the board that the county has experienced only four relocation cases in the past two years, with costs ranging from a low of $774 for one family to a high of $14,235 for another.

In those instances, the projects were assisted by Federal allocations. The new legislation provides that such relocation assistance must be provided by the county for projects which are not federally or state reimbursed.

Goodwin informed the board that it is County Mgr. M.D. Tarshes's best estimate that the 1973-74 relocation workload will be approximately 20 to 30 cases, of which roughly two-thirds would result from road projects.

The magnitude of the workload beyond this fiscal year is difficult to estimate at present because it depends on the acquisition projects which the board will be authorized in the future, Goodwin pointed out.

Consequently, the manager's office recommended, and board approved, adopting the resolution on an interim basis for 12 to 18 months, after which a permanent program can be approved incorporating revisions resulting from a review of the operation.

Goodwin reported that Friday and County Engineer S. H. Cantwell Jr. also joined in recommending retention of a relocation specialist under contract "due to the uncertainty of the workload and in order to retain the flexibility necessary to possibly revise the program in 1974."

Relocation assistance includes, in addition to payment for property acquired, helping affected persons or businesses find a new location, costs of moving, certain closing costs on the replacement dewelling or location and, in the case of displaced families, temporary housing.

Gregorio Challenges Reagan Tax Initiative

State Sen. Arlen Gregorio told members of the Mission Merchants Association meeting in Daly City Thursday they should take "a very close look" at Governor Reagan's tax proposal before casting their votes in the Nov. 6 election.

Gregorio said while he agreed with the preamble to the measure he disagreed with the purpose of it.

He said he did not believe the tax would accomplish what it was intended to accomplish, that is, to assist low and middle income groups.

Rather it will hurt these classes, in addition to putting a limit on revenues that can be collected for school support and shifting this financial burden from income taxes to the property tax roles, Gregorio said.

It will have a detrimental effect on support of local government projects, Gregorio feels. These local agencies will have to raise new revenues by other means — perhaps through sales taxes, he said.

Two major items that will feel the pinch under Governor Reagan's tax proposals will be health and welfare and the schools, he said.

School districts will be limited in how much they will be able to raise to meet their budgets, Gregorio explained.

He predicted that if the new tax law comes into being "bright people will find a way around it."

Asked if he was satisfied with the way the past legislative session went, Gregorio responded, "Many things we did and many things we didn't do."

But he was satisfied with the cooperation he was getting from Assemblyman Louis J. Papan.

"Together I feel we have been able to push through several bills of benefit to the people of the North County," Gregorio said.

On reapportionment, the senator was "very glad" on its overall outcome, however, in the case of Daly City the Assembly district lines chopped up the city.

Rules Proposed For Fishing Pier

Pacifica city councilmen balked Sept. 26 at adopting a list of 20 "don'ts" involving the new 1050-foot fishing pier soon to open.

The bans were contained in a proposed ordinance, of which any violation was subject to a fine of not more than $500 or a county jail term of not more than six months — or both.

Mayor Aubrey Lumley directed Don Jefferson, administrative aide to City Mgr. Dave Thompson, to have staff rewrite the ordinance, limiting it to whatever may affect the city's liability. All other regulations which may already be superseded by state law would be eliminated.

Among items which were proposed for enactment into law were bans on roller skating, bicycling, climbing on or across the pier railing, casting a fishing line overhead, using more than one pole or drop line at a time, permitting any animal on the pier except a seeing-eye dog, surf casting from the beach within 200 feet of the pier, lighting any bonfire or hibachi, or to swim, wade, surf or skin dive within 20 feet of the pier.

It would even have been illegal to "loiter, sit, lie or stand" upon the pier in such a manner as "unreasonably to annoy or molest any person thereon, or to interfere with free passage of persons using the pier."

Chamber of Commerce Mgr. Tom Sawyer objected to restricting fishermen from such a large section of the beach. Kay Grottum of Beach Boulevard suggested keeping fishermen off the section of pier by the beach, instead. However, councilmen thought that the fishermen would simply go where the fish are.

It was suggested that the long list of rules was not meant to be strictly enforced but just to be there, in case they were needed.

Councilmen Harland Minshew added that he could not see sending in a police officer to arrest fishermen, when there was so much real crime to be dealt with.

Emory Leboeuf, president of the Sharp Park Improvement Club, insisted that "if you put an ordinance on the books, we want it to be enforced."

He wanted the neighborhood of the fishing pier to be protected, he added.

Minshew objected to the ban on hibachis. He felt that fishermen often need a little heat on chilly days. Councilman Don Halverson thought the ban necessary to protect "kids running around barefoot."

Lumley finally announced that rather than act on the proposed ordinance, he would ask the staff to rewrite it in accordance with comments that had been made by the council.

TN Offers Three New Courses

War and Peace Studies, U.S. History, and Analytic Geometry and Calculus I and II are new classes being offered at Terra Nova this year.

Analytic Geometry and Calculus I and II, taught by Al Pucci, will cover the following topics: rectangular and polar coordinates; equations of curves, straight lines, circles; functions of a single variable; limits, differentiation and integration with application. Algebra 3-4 is a prerequisite to Analytic Geometry and Calculus I and II, which is a one year course. Advanced placement tests for this class will be given in May and if a student passes with a high grade he can wave one year of college calculus credit.

U.S. History, taught by Jim Soden, is an advanced placement, one year course and will deal with conflicting historical interpretations. The class is worth 10 units of college credit if a student passes the advanced placement tests with a high grade. It is primarily for students interested in majoring in Social Science in college.

War and Peace Studies, also taught by Soden, is a one semester course and will deal with what causes conflict between individuals, groups, and even nations, and ways to resolve onflicts.

Bake Sale Scheduled

The Ladies' Sodality of St. Thomas More will hold a bake sale Oct. 6 after the 5 o'clock Mass and Oct. 7 after all the Masses.

As an added attraction, recipes for many of these baked goods will be offered for sale.

Coffee and donuts will also be available.

Students Return From Europe

A foreign journey was in the stars this summer as eight Westmoor students traveled to Europe, in conjunction with the Foreign Study League. Mark Mallinger and Kathy Hair, teachers at Westmoor, went along as counselors on the trip.

The students included Candy Curtiss, Mary Bear, John Bruno, Karen Hershey, Michele Merkle, Carl Romero, Jorge Monte and Athelda Carrie.

The group left July 2 for Spain, where they joined with 102 students from all over the U.S.A. During the eight days they stayed there they took in the usual tourist sites, such as the Royal Palace and walking through the streets of Toledo City. Afterwards they spent some time at Retiro Park and visited a sword factory.

From there it was Italy on the agenda, where they saw where Caesar was killed. Touring the Catacombs, the Coliseum and the Forum were just a few of the interesting places they explored before traveling to Florence, where they saw Michelangelo's statue of "David."

Next was Switzerland. For eight days the students mingled with farm communities and the people of Berne, Switzerland's capital.

The "City of Lights" followed. The Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, Notre Dame Cathedral and the original Statue of Liberty were only a few of the exciting attractions Paris had to offer.

In England the students saw the changing of the Guard and got a taste of some real English fish and chips.

The people in the different countries they visited were friendly, and this, coupled for an enjoyable, worthwhile with the exciting sites made exchange of cultures.

S.M. Choral Society Receives $1200 Grant

The San Mateo County Choral Society, beginning its second season of concerts and television performances this fall, has received $1200 grant from the U. S. Harkson Fund of the San Mateo Foundation.

The amount was granted to the choral society for equipment to be used in the presentation of future concerts.

Concerts this coming year include an Opera Gala to be held Oct. 27 at the Little Theater of the College of San Mateo; a Christmas program at the Church of the Epiphany in San Carlos; and a Lenten concert to be presented in cooperation with the San Mateo County Chamber Music Society and St. Bartholomew's Church in San Mateo.

Lecture Set

A lecture, entitled "Creation vs. Evolution," will be delivered by the Rev. John Rische at Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Pacifica, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m. The church is located on Coast Highway 1 at Rockaway Beach. The public is invited.

The California State Board of Education has decided that science textbooks used in state schools can no longer present evolution as positive, proven fact in accounting for the origin of life.

Fashions from seven of Serramonte Shopping Center's stores will be modeled tomorrow during the noon hour by members of Mary's Help Hospital Guild as a part of the thirdnannual observance of Mary's Help Hospital Guild Day at Serramonte.

According to Mrs. Jerry Stringer, publccity chairman for the guild, The Ranch Inn will be the setting for the presentation of fall and winter dresses from Macy's, McDonald's, Montgomery Ward, Lady J. Bartel's, Ron's Hawaiian Shop and Roos/Atkins.

Members of the guild, wives of doctors and members of the hospital administrative staff have volunteered to model for the event. Wearing the dresses selected for viewing will be Mrs. Ron Chiappari, Mrs. Frank Lawson, Mrs. Howard Poblitz, Mrs. C. J. Dunow, Mrs. John McCoy, Mrs. Bernard Allendorf, Mrs. Paul Hupf, Mrs. Vernon Okerstrom, Mrs. Edward Christensen, Mrs. James Harding, Merridee Allen, Mrs. Warren Scott, Mrs. Marie Knowles, Bette Myerson, Nina Ferro, Jeanne Tillman, Mrs. Walter Carlson, Lee Brandt, Mrs. Philip Coneglio, Mrs. William Corbell and Mrs. Stringer.

In addition to the fashion show-luncheon, Mary's Help Hospital Guild Day will be observed in a variety of ways. Booths manned by pink pinafored guild members, will offer displays of several types and guild members will be stationed about the shopping center to greet shoppers and explain the hospital and its services to them. Booths with information about the Heart Association, the Cancer Association, the Red Cross, the Visiting Nurse Association and other community health services will be scattered about the center's malls.

The guild is eagerly preparing to meet the public and acquaint people with the many services available to them and also to alert women of the opportunity to serve others that membership in the guild affords.

IN HONOR of Columbus, the men and women of Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church in Westlake will present "A Night in Capri" Friday, Oct. 12.

Mrs. William Schou, publicity chairman for the Westlake Catholic Women, supplied the details about the dance and midnight buffet which is being co-chaired by Peter Balestrieri for the Westlake Catholic Men and Mrs. Donald Gianfermo for the Westlake Catholic Women.

Michael Corino will provide music for dancing beginning at 9 p.m. in the parish hall. A hot buffet supper will be served at midnight. Tickets may be purchased from John Kachur, 92-0279, or Balestrieri, 755-8290, for a nominal $6 per couple.

Women wishing to purchase their tickets at the Oct. 8 meeting of the Westlake Catholic Women, should see Mrs. Jack Loughran or Mrs. Ted Carey.

THE HARVEST HOP won't be for students, but it will be a fun get-together for the parents of Riordan High School boys!

According to Mrs. John Bologna, publicity chairman for the Riordan Guild, the dance will be jointly sponsored by the guild and the Riordan High School Fathers' Club Saturday, Oct. 6 at 9 p.m.

There will be dancing to live music and a midnight buffet, all for only $6 per couple.

After having become acquainted with the parents of their sons' friends, the mothers will have an opportunity to meet the faculty of Riordan at "An Apple for the Teacher Night" Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. in Chaminade Hall.

Mrs. Lorraine Cirelli, program chairman, has made the arrangements for this novel get-acquainted meeting.

KITS KAPERS, a leadership training program, will be presented twice by the Daly City Girl Scout Association during the month of October.

Kit, for those who don't know, is Kit Hammett, author of "Youths' Own Book of Camp Craft," past president of the American Camping Association and former member of the Girl Scout National staff, and the two sessions with Kit will provide an unexcelled opportunity to learn about leading youth in out-of-doors settings.

The first session will be Saturday at 10 a.m. in Sigmund Stern Grove in San Francisco with the second gathering to be held in the King Recreation Center, San Mateo Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 9:30 a.m.

SHOULD YOU RUN into Don Neyman, manager of United Magnavox in Serramonte, you may note he exhibits a certain preoccupation with student travel, methods of raising funds for such travel and the joys of being the parent of a talented teen-ager!

That may sound a bit confusing, but it all ties together when you learn that he is chairman of the committee to raise funds to send the Silver Creek High School Raider Marching Band to Hawaii to march in the Floral Parade Oct. 20 as a part of the Aloha Week Festivities.

Don, whose daughter, Vickie, is a member of the flute section, is faced with the formidable chore of raising $24,000 within the next three weeks, so that Silver Creek's band can represent the mainland during the festival. Previously the band has marched in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York, and in the Disneyland West Christmas parade.

Suggestions for money raising projects and contributions are gratefully accepted at this time, according to Neyman.

CAROL CHANNING was guest speaker recently at the Press Club of San Francisco. Seen in conversation with her are, Barney Gould and Mrs. Murray H. Freedman, co-chairman of the press club event. Other Daly City residents who attended the meeting were Mmes. Charles Poggio, Konstaninos Poulos, Eugene Crandall, Robert O'Neil, Helen Concannon, Jerry Stringer, Edward Ginsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McDonnell.

Soroptimist Club to Help In 1974 Youth Awards

The Soroptimist Club of North San Mateo County will participate in the 1974 Youth Citizenship Awards.

The awards are given for outstanding contributions by young people to encourage youth to develop high concepts of patriotism and to encourage effective cooperation in home, community, national and international affairs.

Each award may be used at the discretion of the recipient, in any way he or she may decide which will best further his or her aims and purposes in achieving desired goals — travel and education. The cash awards are paid in lump sums to the winning students and not to any college, university or institution of higher learning.

Any young man or woman who will be graduating during the 1973-74 school year, but not later than June 1974, is eligible to apply. Each candidate must complete the official application and submit three letters of recommendation from adults not related to the candidate.

The completed application form must be received by Anita E. Banning, 1320 Mission Road, S.S.F. 94080 or you may telephone at 588-6272, Ext. 268, the club's representative, not later than Dec. 3. Typed or printed applications are preferred.

The winner of the local club's ($25) will be entered for higher competition. The winner of the Regional Award receives $1,000 cash and is eligible to be included in the final competition among the 17 Regions. Grand prize is an additional $1,500 Finalist Award, making a total of $2,500 to the finalist, exclusive of local and other awards.

Any student who is a graduating senior at Serramonte, Oceana, Terra Nova, Baden, El Camino or South San Francisco High Schools may get an application from the assistant principal at his or her respective high school.

Susin, Murphy Exchange Vows

At a Nuptial Mass celebrated before the Altar of St. Joseph's Basilica, Alameda, recently, John Patrick Murphy of Colma bestowed his name upon Luisa Susin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Susin of Alameda.

The Reverend Father Joseph K. Autard, a classmate of the groom's father, officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Blue Dolphin on the San Leandro Marina.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white chiffon, trimmed with lace. Her mantilla veil was edged with lace and her cascade bouquet was of carnations and yellow pompons, with roses.

In green and yellow print chiffon gowns were the bride's attendants, who also wore white picture hats with yellow ribbons and carried bouquets of carnations and yellow pompons. Serving as maid of honor was Giulia Duca and in bridesmaid roles were Peggy Murphy, the bridegroom's sister, of Colma, and Mrs. Wayne Wright and Rita Perillo.

Ushering guests were Michael Smith and Steve Burton of Daly City, and Wayne Wright. Best man duties were performed by Thomas Blank. Ring bearer was Anthony Susin, the bride's brother.

Business Bureau Questions, Answers

By LORENE BEASLEY

QUESTION: I have been contacted by a company to permit my house to be used as a model home for a "new" revolutionary product just being introduced to the market by the manufacturer. What do you suggest?

ANSWER: This is one of the oldest and most cruel schemes worked on unsuspecting homeowners who think they are getting something for nothing. Often the salesman very cleverly gets the homeowner to sign a paper which they represent as "just a certificate to show that we are going to use your home as a model." This piece of paper is more than a certificate. It is a contract which can be turned over to a finance company. You are obligated to pay the finance company which, in all probability, is innocent of any wrongdoing on the part of the salesman. Remember, when you sign a contract, you are obligated. When in doubt, and the company is unknown to you, call the Better Business Bureau before signing a contract.

QUESTION: The store where I bought a davenport added an extra charge to my set bill. My door was too small and the delivery men saidI would have to pay $25 when they came back a second time to hoist the davenport through the window. I think this is an expense the store should absorb. They advertised that there would be no delivery charge.

ANSWER: A statement such as "no delivery charge" applies to normal delivery conditions and hoisting a davenport through a window is not the normal thing to do.

QUESTION: I ordered a gold leaf table from a furniture company. When the table was delivered I gave the driver a check which he refused, saying he had to have cash or a certified check. He took the table back and I called the company and asked for my $50 deposit. They refused to return my money, saying if "I don't accept the table I lose the deposit." What can I do?

ANSWER: Unfortunately, not too much. Many companies demand cash or a certified check and will not accept personal checks.

Salvation Army Gets New Kidney Machine

Owning a Drake Willock model 4002 artificial kidney machine is something like having a 12-cylinder 1947 Lincoln limousine, in mint condition. It is a beautiful car, that will take you anywhere, but the newer, compact models are here.

The Social Service Center of The Salvation Army in San Francisco has a Drake Willock 4002 that was donated by Mrs. Rose Marie Casoly, a psychiatric nurse. Suffering from a form of nephritis, Mrs. Casoly used the $5,000 machine for two years, then stopped using it when she underwent a successful kidney transplant operation.

She and her husband donated it to The Salvation Army, and it is a formidable looking machine — decorating a corner of the staff's coffee break room at the Social Service Center, 1500 Valencia St., San Francisco.

The machine has been checked by technicians at Franklin Hospital. It functions as it should, and is capable of saving someone's life.

The problem is that particularly in California's big cities kidney research has progressed so rapidly since Mrs. Casoly was stricken four years ago, that there is now a Drake Willock 4015, and the Drake Willock 4002 is technically obsolete, although capable of keeping someone alive and enjoying life, just as it did Mrs. Casoly four years ago.

The Kidney Center at San Francisco General Hospital wants to use the machine as a backup for its newer models. Major George W. Duplain, director of the Social Service Center, said it would be a good use for the machine.

But he pointed out that there are many places in the world, as well as in the United States, where kidney research isn't as advanced as it is in California. In those places, the Drake Willock 4002 could very well make the difference between life and death for someone.

"We have the machine, it has been checked and found to be functionally okay, and we are looking for the best possible use for it," he said. The Social Service Center, which has 10 Thrift Stores between Redwood City and Petaluma, operates a residential work and therapy program for handicapped and alcoholic people in its Valencia St. headquarters.

Building Underway At Terra Nova

By ANNE HILO
Campus Correspondent

Construction is the main project in effect at Terra Nova this year. Many Pacificans, as well as the Terra Nova student body, are awaiting the arrival of the Little Theatre.

For the first weeks of school, Terra Novans have tied to avoid wires, nails, cement, wood splinters, paneling, electrical conduits, piping, equipment trucks and the "skirting" of the portable classrooms. Asphalting and the planting of electrical and bell wires were started, too.

Walking by the swimming pool, one can view the new "Windbreaker," a large metal and glass protector in place of the wired fence. The Windbreaker, started and completed over the summer, was bought by the J.U.H.S.D.

But as the student body increases each year, more and more problems arise with overcrowding. Two major problems that I have come across are the student parking lots and the "arena scheduling" concept.

The Arena, a congolmeration of teachers grouped in their department in the cafeteria, met with seniors, juniors, sophomores and freshmen who wanted to change or drop classes. For most, changing classes this year was a hassle. Being very impatient myself, it was ironic to go through four long lines of signatures and OK's, just to change into one class for which I didn't sign up. Hopefully, someone will come up with a better and quicker solution.

Most of the student parking lots are "off limits" (the problem stemming from construction) this year — there is hardly any space! One of the parking lots was replaced by portable classrooms. Faculty members are the only people permitted to use parking lots; students have been asked to park elsewhere.

Peninsula Group Starts Parental Stress Hotline

In an attempt to prevent child abuse before it happens, a group is forming in the mid-Peninsula to help overwhelmed parents and their children.

Parental Stress Hotline is modeled after some 60 similar groups that have formed across the country. It also will try to provide an avenue of confidential help to parents who either abuse their children or fear that they might.

Founded by Tracy Madden and Shirley Radl, the group will operate a telephone hotline serving both San Mateo and Santa Clara counties. The hotline number is 327-3333, and it will be open for calls between 3 and 9 p.m. daily.

It is hoped that parents will call the hotline when they feel they can no longer cope and are on the verge of abusing their children either physically or verbally. The caller, who may remain anonymous if he chooses, will be invited to join a group of similarly troubled parents who help each other work out their problems.

If the group can't help a parent directly, it has the resources to refer him to another agency or group better suited to the situation.

The organization currently has about 30 volunteers, and 14 of them have undergone a training program to enable them to handle the phone calls. The rest of the volunteers do fund raising, public relations and clerical work.

Galiano, Humphrey Wed in Daly City

Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church in Daly City was the setting Saturday afternoon at 2:30 for the marriage of Frances Elaine Galiano and Gary Thomas Humphrey. The Rev. Thomas McElligott officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Galiano of South San Francisco. She is a graduate of El Camino High School.

Gary is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Humphrey of San Mateo. He is an alumnus of Aragon High School and the College of San Mateo.

The bride asked her sister, Mrs. John Byrns, to be her sole attendant. Best man duties were performed by Gregory A. Humphrey, the bridegroom's brother.

Immediately following the wedding, a dinner for the immediate families was given in San Francisco.

The newlyweds are now honeymooning in Southern California. They will return to live in Belmont.

The bride has one other sister, Joyce Galiano, and a brother, Louis Galiano. Gary is also the brother of Mary Jane Humphrey.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

When a recipe begins with, "Brown one pound ground beef," and ends with, "feeds eight," one can safely say, given today's food prices, that that recipe has universal appeal.

Just such a gem came to me recently from my neighbor Nancy Foss and after making it and tasting it, I'm happy to be able to share this recipe.

INSIDE-OUT RAVIOLI

1 pound ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon oil
1 10-oz. package frozen, chopped spinach
1 package prepared spaghetti sauce seasoning
1 large can solid pack tomatoes, No. 2½
1 6-ox. can tomato paste
½ teaspoon salt
petter to taste
1 package Bow-Tie macaroni
4 cup soft bread crumbs
1 cup shredded sharp process American cheese
12 well-beaten eggs
2 cup oil
Parmesan cheese

Brown the one pound ground beef, one chopped onion and one minced clove garlic in the one tablespoon oil. Cook the 10-ounce package spinach, drain reserving liquid. Add enough water to make one cup. Stir spinach liquid and the one package spaghetti sauce seasoning into the meat mixture. Add the large can tomatoes and 6-ounces tomato paste, blend well and simmer for ten minutes.

Cook and drain the bow-tie macaroni. In mixing one cup shreadded cheese, two well beaten eggs, one-one cup shredded cheese, t2o well beaten eggs, one-fourth cup salad oil and the drained spinach. Spread in 9x13-inch baking pan. Top with meat sauce. Bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes or bubbly hot. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and serve. Serves 8.

I RECENTLY took a dessert to a party at a neighbor's home. It's a long time favorite in my family, but was new to my friends. Since apples are so plentiful these days and, if you made the ravioli, the oven is hot, why not make this delightful apple dish.

APPLE DELIGHT

5 or 6 large cooking apples
1 cup flour
¾ cup brown sugar
½ cube butter

Peel and slice the 6 apples into a greased 9x9-inch baking dish. Combine the one cup flour, three-fourths cup brown sugar and half cube butter and pour over apples. Bake in 350-degree oven for approximately 45 minutes or until apples are tender.

This dessert is delicious served alone, but may be topped with ice cream, whipped cream or pour half and half over it.

Lest you think there was something missing in the cookies in last week's column, they are really Applesauce Cookies, not Apricot as headed.

High Holy Days To End Oct. 5

The High Holy Days for the Jewish New Year 5734 will conclude with the Yom Kippur services to be held at Congregation B'nai Israel in Daly City.

The Kol Nidre service will be conducted Oct. 5 beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Rabbi Sheldon Edwards and Cantor Jacob Graudenz will officiate.

Cantor Graudenz will chant the "Kol Nidre," a haunting, plaintive melody at least 600 years old in its present form that represents an absolution for any broken vows between man and God.

Rabbi Edwards has selected "Come, Let Us Reason Together" as his sermon topic and A. Arthur Hirschhorn, president of the congregation, will deliver the traditional Yom Kippur address.

The schedule of services of the Yom Kippur Day, a day of fasting and repentance, Oct. 6 will begin at 8 a.m. and continue with the Torah service, the Yiskor (Memorial) service, the Musaf, Mincha and Ne'ilah services in the afternoon and the concluding Ma'ariv and Havdallah services, beginning at 6:15 p.m.

Rabbi Edwards will preach on the topic, "Believing, Belonging, Becoming" and "Shenahyim Mi Yodeah?."

A young people's service will be held at 3 p.m. and a children's service at 3:30 p.m., for those children under 12.

"Our God and God of Our Fathers" is the sermon topic by Rabbi Edwards for both services.

Chairman of the Elegant Poverty Cookbook committee is Mrs. Starr Colby, vice president. She is assisted by Mrs. Gordon Nelson, district president; and Mmes. John Howard, Vernon Finacom, P. Promer, C. Lazarus, Clinton Murphy, U. Hamway and Gene Chojnacki.

The cookbook title arose from the premise that P-TA volunteers are particularly caring about the quality of their lives (hence Elegant), and are chronically short of time and-or money (hence Poverty).

Directory

Let's hear it — three cheers for the Daly City-Colma 1973-1974 City Directory and three more for Ramona Birke and the staff of the City Directory.

For years this handy tool has been coming to the homes and businesses of the Daly City-Colma area, and like pliers and shovels and dictionaries and the telephone book, is consistently useful.

You want a map of the city? Look on pages 25-27 and 32-35. Here city streets, highways, shopping centers, parks and schools are marked with appropriate symbols.

Emergency phone numbers appear on page one along with other pertinent phone numbers and the zip codes for North San Mateo County. Pictures of the city councilmen and names of city officials appear on page two. The address of the Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce and director Pete Markovich's picture are also on page two.

PAGES SIX and eight contain a professional directory listing such public servants as accountants, attorneys, dentists, doctors and hospitals. Schools are listed in a section on pages 18 and 19 while churches may be found in a special listing on pages 30 and 31.

The heart of the book, of course, is the alphabetical section where business concerns appear by type in a long, easy to read list. Say you want to redo your walls, then look under paper hanging or painting or paints-retail. Thus the directory leads you to the right business house and the right man to fill your needs.

INFOLMATION regarding San Francisco is contained in a much larger directory published by R. L. Polk Co. Here is a wonderful tool that may be found in your public library. It contains for major sections:

1. A buyers guide, printed on yellow sheets and listing business concerns by type in one long, alphabetical listing.

2. An alphabetical list of names of residents and business and professional concerns on white paper.

3. A directory of householders which prints on green pages the house numbers on each of the streets in San Francisco and lists the occupant of the place.

4. A municipal telephone directory — on blue paper — where telephone numbers are listed numerically with the name of the subscriber who answers the given number.

PERHAPS no more useful publication exists than the Polk Directory. It is carefully planned for easy use. To produce it the R. L. Polk and Co., publishers gather information by an actual canvass and compile it in a way to insure maximum accuracy.

Especially useful is a geographic-history section that describes the settling of San Francisco and details, briefly, its history. This section also contains population figures and information regarding the climate and government of San Francisco.

Speaking of such publications as the Daly City-Colma Directory and the R. L. Polk Directory, Professor Louis Shores wrote, "These are pure reference books ... brief and practical." He found them used to answer at least 10 kinds of questions.

LWV Gather to Hear Panel Rap Tax Plan

The Central San Mateo County League of Women Voters Sept. 26 gathered 200 strong to hear a panel of speakers, led by State Senator Arlen Gregorio attack Proposition One from a variety of angles, in a morning-long session at St. Paul's Episcopal Parish House, Burlingame.

No kind words were said for the Reagan-backed proposal which would set limits on State taxation and eventually roll back State taxes.

The League, which as far back as April opposed the measure, heard the arguments against it; then Sandi Hughes, Action Chairman, who had been chairing the session, announced that "we are forming our coalition next week."

The coalition, she explained, will spearhead an effort to link up with other groups opposing Proposition One.

After an illustrated rundown of the Proposition by Mem Levin, the panel went into action. It included San Mateo Supt. of Schools J. Russell Kent, Asst. County Mgr. Earl Goodwin; State League President Mrs. Evelyn Kaplan; Tom Hunter, business manager of the Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 467, and County Health and Welfare chief Dr. George Pickett.

Mrs. Levin warned that two-thirds of the money "now comes back to us from the State" if the money is limited, we don't know how much will come back.

"It will add 4000 words — Article 29 — to the State Constitution which we have been trying to simplify.

"It will have an effect on matching funds — they would be hurt; the schools would be hurt," she continued, referring again to the two-thirds return.

She said it was possible local taxes would have to be increased, and that there might be loopholes. Bonds, interest, tuition, she explained, are not included in expenditure ceilings.

Gregorio called the measure the "most profound change in California's Constitution ever proposed," and said it was experimental, producing "unforseen results."

He said "we would not want to see the tax burden simply shifted to another level of government." It is the kind of inflexibility, he continued, "that detracts from democratic representative government. "The bulwark of democratic process has evolved in the legislative branch," Gregorio said.

The state senator saw the measure as weakening the legislative branch and, in effect "saying to the Legislature 'We don't trust you,'" he said.

Dr. Kent said that schools take 45 per cent of the state budget, that this proposal makes 1973-74 the base year ("We cannot estimate at this point what the base limit will be.") and noted that it would mandate reduction to 7 per cent over a period of years.

He saw this as meaning no one could be sure how long a period would be involved in reaching that seven per cent — but it could be anywhere from five to 25 years. Nor could anyone make categorical statements on how much could be saved, he said.

Concerning that 45 per cent to the schools, he said, how could you cut the budget without cutting local government. Goodwin noted that "not enough information had been released on a low Pointing out that San Mateo County's tax rate is one of the lowest, and its tax cost per capita the lowest in the state, he noted that Proposition One puts the tax rate into the State Constitution.

Local costs — city and county — will be growing as the cost of doing business goes up, and more work is done in carrying out existing programs, he said. Optional programs local people want would be cut out, as he saw it.

Hunter was more blunt: "It's a fraud," he said.

The union leader charged that $161,000 supposed to be used for welfare had been used in this.

When Reagan talked about the savings of average families, he said, "He isn't talking about the families I know; he is talking about the families he knows."

The measure, he contended, aids the wealthy and takes away the Legislature's tax prerogatives and gives them to the governor.

Dr. Pickett noted that there are 18,000 in San Mateo County — about three per cent of its population — dependent on the county for health care. National health insurance is only three to five years away, he predicted, and "the United States will then transfer other plans into national health insurance."

He said there was an ever present danger of squeezing on costs at the upper level, and that this comes out in either reducing benefits or making fewer eligible for them, in turn passing the problem on to local government.

In following discussion, Gregorio pointed out that there were ways by which the Legislature could evade tax limitations — such as by setting up a state-wide taxing district.

There was also the strong possibility, it was said, that since school boards are not limited, the Legislature might logically pick on the school money, allowing the school boards to raise their own money.

Try Fish Fillets for Economy

The high cost of eating has necessitated many changes in menu planning. What is needed are foods that nourish and satisfy, may be quickly prepared, and stay within the alloted budget — a large order to fill.

Look to the sea: There are hundreds of varieties of protein-rich, quick-cooking fishery products and these may vary in price from the strictly gourmet to the very moderate.

Fish fillets, are a good buy because they are 100 percent edible with practically no waste. Fish varieties to please every taste and purse are available in filleted form and may be purchased either fresh or frozen.

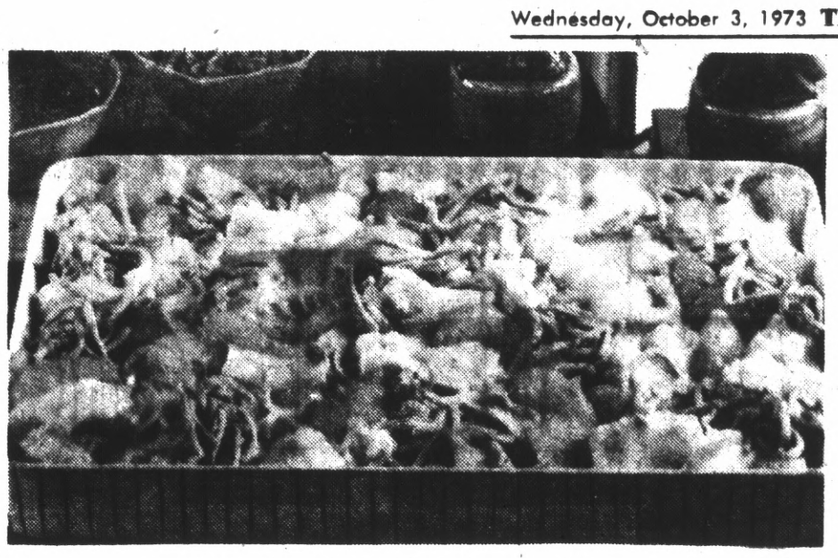
Crunchy Fish Noodle Bake is an easy-do casserole that serves four persons and requires only one pound of fish fillets. The fish is extended by combining condensed cream of mushroom soup, sliced celery, chopped onion, and madarin oranges and juice.

Chopped salted peanuts and half a can of chow mein noodles are added for crunch. Additional noodles are added before the baking is completed and more mandarin oranges are used as a garnish. Keep the recipe handy as a standby because all of the ingredients are either freezer or shelf ready and the total cost is unbelievably low.

CRUNCHY FISH NOODLE BAKE

- 1 pound fish fillets, fresh or frozen
- 1 can (11 ounce) mandarin orange segments
- 1 can (10½ ounce) condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1 cup sliced celery
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup chopped salted peanuts
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 can (3 ounce) chow mein noodles

Thaw frozen fish. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Drain orange segments; save ¼ cup syrup. Save about ¼ of the orange segments for garnishing top. Combine soup, reserved orange syrup, remaining orange segments, fish, celery, onion, peanuts, salt, and ½ of the noodles; mix. Spread mixture into a shallow 1½ quart casserole. Cover with aluminum foil, crimping it to edges of casserole. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 30 minutes. Uncover. Sprinkle with remaining noodles. Continue cooking about 10 minutes or until hot and bubbly and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Garnish with orange segments. Makes four servings.



FISH FILLET casserole with fruit, nuts.

1-Pan Menu List Grows

Golden Grain has just introduced three new one-pan dinners. Tuna Noodles, Chicken Noodles and Hot Dog Macaroni.

The new items have been added to the original three Stir-n-Serv mixes. These are Beefy Rice, Lasagna and Spaghetti. The original products all require just one pound f hamburger for a complete dish.

All the Stir-n-Serv dinners make into a complete entree. A fresh tossed green salad and a beverage would finish off an easily prepared meal.

Food for Life

Budgeting For Good Nutrition

By George M. Briggs, Ph.D.
Nutritionist

Avoiding high food prices without sacrificing good nutrition is not as difficult as you may think. I have said many times before that money spent on food can bear little relationship to its nutritive value.

Look around for bargains. Many fresh fruits and vegetables are at season's peak this time of year — making prices their lowest. As a general rule, when food is most abundant, prices are lower.

The best advice I can offer is to take advantage of these fruits and vegetables. Look around for bargains. Tomatoes, melons, peaches, plums, grapes, green leafy vegetables, green beans, sweet corn, and squash are good examples. If you have a home freezer, now is a good time to make use of it. You might also consider home canning if you have farm produce available.

There are still many basic foods which have gone up very little, if any, in cost. These foods include bread, cereals, beans, fish, milk and dairy foods, and certain cuts of meat. If the supply and demand is allowed to operate freely this fall, we can expect less expensive grains and soybeans, making foods made from these products cheaper.

Use these foods when you can instead of higher priced products. Nutritionally they are excellent.

Take time to evaluate your eating habits, especially expensive foods low in nutritional value. Many desserts, such as cookies, candy, soft drinks, imitation fruit drinks, alcoholic beverages and the like, contribute little to the diet other than additional cost and calories.

For you who are overweight, food prices might dictate the willpower necessary for losing extra pounds.

In all fairness, foods are still one of the best bargains we have in relation to per capita income.

Apple Crop at Peak in Fall

Autumn is the time for fresh apples, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Some of the varieties good for eating out of hand are Delicious, Golden Delicious, and Winesap. For cooking and baking use Newtown Pippin, Jonathan, and Rome Beauty.

Good quality apples are firm, crisp and well-colored with good flavor for the variety. Avoid ones with cuts, bruises or ones that are soft, a sign of overripeness and mealy flesh. Keep in the refrigerator up to one week.

Cauliflower Season Here

Fresh cauliflower is in peak supply October. Look for cauliflower that is firm and compact with a white to creamy-white color. Avoid ones with loose, spreading flower clusters, a sign of overmaturity. Store in the refrigerator three to five days.

Cap Upsets Warriors, 8-7

By JERRY LITTRELL
Times Correspondent

Adversity begat valor on the arc-lighted Clifford Field turf Friday night.

Slight underdogs to start with, large underdogs by game time and gargantuan underdogs by halftime, Capuchino nevertheless rallied with 37 seconds to go to pull out an 8-7 victory over South San Francisco with a pure-class final minute drive.

The victory meant a 2-1 pre-season record for Cap while South City dropped to a 1-2 mark entering North Peninsula League play.

Capuchino didn't have starting quarterback Ralph Costanzo to fill the air with football s as the talented junior sat out most of the week with severe stomach pains. So the Mustangs adapted. Very well.

Mike Liberty got the starting quarterback call and did an adequate job guiding the revamped ground game in the first half.

But South City fullback Bob Rhodes powered over from the one after a fumble recovery started a 23-yard touchdown march and the Warriors took a 7-0 lead into the dressing room.

Things were even gloomier after halftime for Cap. Liberty got knocked hard towards the end of the first half, had memory problems during the break and didn't play the rest of the night. Now converted end Dan Ross had to fill in as quarterback.

It was in the third period that Capuchino started pushing around the Warrior defensive line. Showing little finnesse but one heck of a lot of power, the Mustangs ran it up the gut against South City and constantly battered the Warrior defensive line into submission.

But all the ground vardage in the final two periods appeared going for naught when, with 47 seconds left, the Tangs were faced with a fourth down and 10 situation.

Ross dropped back, lofted a nicely-timed pass to Mike Slotnick and, even with the Warriors playing back for the pass, connected on his lone completion which went for the 51-yard scoring bomb.

Capuchino, ignoring the tie possibility, swept Ross to the right on an option play. Just before being smeared by the Warrior defense he flipped a lateral to Dan Greenleaf who ran untouched to the winning two-point conversion.

Ara Parsegian, eat your heart out.

Capuchino	0	0	0	8—8
South SF	0	7	0	0—7

Scoring: South San Francisco — Rhodes 1 run (Tylenda kick). Capuchino — Slotnick, 51 pass from Ross (Greenleaf run).

The Giants

LOCAL NOTES: Keith Hernandez, former Pacifica and San Bruno prep whiz finishing the season with Tulsa of the American Association, hit .333 for the Cardinal farm club. In only 120 at bats, he hit five homers and drove in 25 scores. At a full season's pace, that would have come out to about 20 homers and more than 100 RBI's.

Another former Pacifica prep baseball star, Bill Downing, is now in the Florida Instructional League, coming out of his first year in pro ball with Atlanta farm club Savannah of the Class AA Southern League.

TAG END: All the Riggs-King match proved to us is something everybody already knew — that Billie Jean is much better than Margaret Court.

Fans often berate Giant management for failing to grow outstanding pitching on their farms, but the odd fact is that the Dodgers, who boast one of baseball's best pitching staffs and are known for the abundance of raw material on their farms, have home grown only Don Sutton of their current pitching staff, unless, of course, you count reliever Pete Richert, who came in trade this year from Baltimore but was originally a Dodger, and a few unproven, late season rookie entries.

STATISTICS are interesting, and do serve as yardsticks for various evaluations, including salary negotiations, the results of which often depend on how the stats are interpreted ("You won 20, but your ERA was high, so you don't deserve a raise," or "Your ERA may have been low, but you only won 10 games, and we don't give raises to losers.") But statistics can distort a player's value to the team.

For example, a relief pitcher is judged primarily on his number of saves. But good reason tells us that a relief pitcher with a winning team is automatically going to get more saves than a relief pitcher with a losing team, even though the latter might be an all around more effective pitcher.

By definition, then, the statistics of a relief pitcher can generally be impressive only with a winning team.

So the old maxim quite probably holds true for starting pitchers on a bad team. To wit: if a man loses 20 games in a season, he must be a good pitcher for his manager to have allowed him to pitch in that many losing games, which must mean that White Sox pitchers Wilbur Wood and Stan Bahnson are fine hurlers.

WE SAID earlier in the year, when the rumors were floating around that a lot of the young Giant players didn't like Charley Fox, that liking your leader has never been a prerequisite for success. Seasoned pros, we said, can't afford that luxury. They should take the money and win.

Perhaps the trouble with the Giants this year, if the unrest because of Fox was the truth, is that they are not a seasoned team, and as such were immature enough to allow a possible dislike for the manager to affect their field play.

If Dave Kingman beats Jim Goodson out of his third base job next year, you can say that it came about because of one of two factors: 1) It was all Dave Radar's fault for running into Goodson on the pop fly which incapacitated Goodson, or, 2) It is Goodson's fault for being so unsure of himself on pop flies that the other players almost always seem compelled to over-hustle in order to get to Goodson and back him up and-or rescue him.

After having watched all the Giant-Dodger games on television this year, we can understand why the Dodgers were leading the majors in team batting averages for so many weeks. Their official score keepers are homers in the genuine sense of the word. Almost any infield bobble by the Giants was a hit for a Dodger.

Here are some statistics that can't be distorted. Juan Marichal is third in all-time Giant wins, innings pitched, complete games and total games, behind Christy Mathewson and Carl Hubbell in every case; he is second in shutouts and strikeouts, behind Mathewson, and fifth in winning percentage, behind Sal Maglie, Mathewson, Jesse Barnes and Doc Crandall. If he isn't traded off soon, he'll probably overtake Hubbell in innings pitched and completed games, and will have an outside chance of passing Mathewson in K's to take over the number one spot in that category.

A surprising stat is that Willie McCovey holds the longest Giant hitting streak — 24 games.

ANOTHER interesting though not surprising statistic is that games in which no-hitters are thrown are usually low-scoring games. About 25 per cent of all no-hitters have been decided by one run margins or were ties. Slightly over 20 per cent of all no-hitters have been either 1-0 games, or scorelss ties. Over 40 per cent of all no-hitters have been 1-0 or 2-0 games.

The reason for low scores in such masterpieces

BEARCATS UNDERESTIMATED?

Rams Surprised

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

"A lot of people are underestimating us," admitted San Mateo High School Bearcat coach Buzz Williams before Friday's game against Westmoor High.

"Some people just don't think we have much but we play hard both ways and do the best with what we've got," he said prophetically as the two teams were lining up for the opening kickoff.

Prophetic is hardly the term.

The Bearcats capitalized early on gross foulups in the Ram defensive backfield, took advantage of six glaring turnovers throughout and came away with a 42-28 scoring carnage in Daly City to hand the Rams their first loss of the 1973 season. San Mateo is now 2-1.

From the opening kickoff the Bearcats had things pretty much their own way. Randy Hurst took the boot and raced 85 yards for a 7-0 lead. Westmoor came back to tie it for the last time when Rob Baptista took a nine-yard toss from Harold Day on the ensuing series but it was all downhill for Westmoor from then on.

Quarterback Mike Cookson had a field day at the expanse of a badly confused Ram secondary. The 'Cat thrower completed nine of 18 (at one time he was seven-for-nine) for 165 yards and touchdown tosses of 37, 22 and 30 yards, as he could hit just about anyone he wanted all afternoon.

The Rams didn't play dead entirely as they outgained the visitors on the ground 245-119 and out-first-downed SM, 26-13.

Day and Cookson battled to a virtual standoff in aerial vardage also, but three crucial fumbles and another three interceptions, two on almost-certian touchdown tosses, killed Westmoor all afternoon.

On three consecutive series late in the third period and early in the fourth the Rams slaughtered themselves with two inexplicable fumbles and another triple-tipped interception, the final tip by alert Steve Robeinson.

"We knew we could throw against Westmoor," Williams said. "We watched their win against Crestmoor and saw where there were basic weaknesses in the defense and we exploited them. Crestmoor helped us quite a bit even though they lost."

San Mateo	14	21	7	0	—42
Westmoor	7	7	14	0	—28

Scoring: San Mateo — Hurst 85 kickoff return (Burton kick). Westmoor — Baptista, 9 pass from Day (Korbus kick). San Mateo — Cassidy, 37 pass from Cookson (Burton kick). Williams, 22 pass from Cookson (Burton kick). Tarlton, 1 run (kick fails). Cassidy, 30 pass from Cookson (Williams pass from Cookson). Westmoor — Baptista, 14 run (Korbus kick). Baptista, 71 run (kick blocked). San Mateo — Jennings, 8 run (Burton kick). Westmoor — Tong, 17 run (Baptista run).

DON MISTAKES HURT

Oceana Tops Aragon

By ERIC NAFTALY
Post Correspondent

A pair of first-quarter miscues were the downfall of the Aragon High Dons Friday in Pacifica, as Oceana converted both into touchdowns and held on for a 14-0 win.

It was Aragon's first loss of the season.

The Sharks kept heavy pressure on Don quarterback Jim Chakos throughout the game, particularly in the first half.

Chakos' first pass of the afternoon was intercepted by safety Art Piccoletti of the Sharks, and a pair of aerials from Shark QB Tony Scoma to 6-5 wide receiver Steve Broadway — the only two passes Scoma completed for forward vardage all afternoon against a stiffening Don defensive effort — got the Sharks on the scoreboard early.

Less than five minutes later, a bad pass from center on a punt attempt gave the Sharks the ball on the Don three, and Oceana's unimpressive but reasonably effective running attack got the ball in without trouble.

It the first half of the defensive struggle belonged to Oceana, Aragon was the superior team on the field in the second half, although the Dons' superiority stopped a good deal short of the goal line.

With his passing game cut off, Chakos began to gain ground on bootleg plays, eventually gaining back all but two of the more than 40 vards his line vielded on sacks and mutted options in the earlier going.

The Dons' defense easily stifled Scoma's few pass attempts and gave up only two first downs on the ground. Jeff Hart's fumble recovery halted the only Oceana scoring drive of the half.

But the Dons could get no farther than the Oceana 20 until the final seconds, when Hart moved into the offensive lineup and quarterbacked a desperation-pass offense inside the 10 before time ran out.

The Dons, who open the league season next Friday against Capuchino, out first-downed the Sharks by a 12-5 margin and completed eight passes to Oceana's three. But it was still an inconsistent effort.

Top offensive threat for the Sharks, like Aragon now 2-1 in non-league play, was running back Mike Murray, who came up with 50 yards in 19 carries.

Sophomore Football To Begin

The Rams lost their second straight practice game at the expense of the McAteer Jaguars, 28-12, last Thursday.

Behind 20-0 at halftime, Westmoor scored on two short runs by Rich Zapatta and closed to 20-12 but an interception touchdown ended the day's activities for the Jaguars.

FASTEST ROUTE HOME

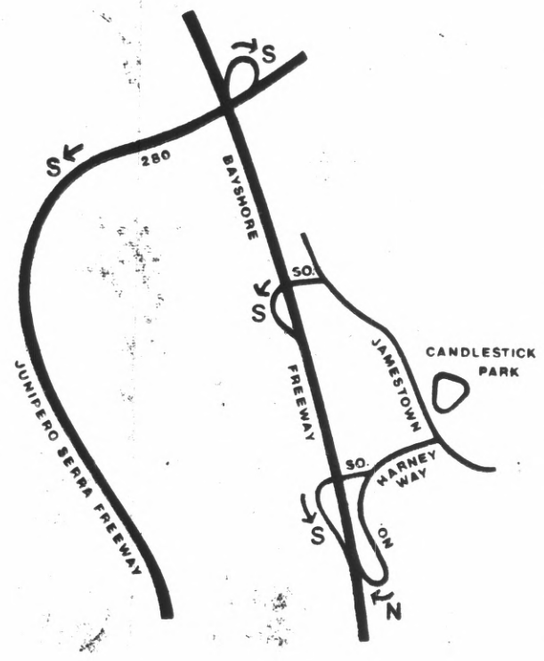
Go North To Get South

Go North to get South.

That's what the 49ers are advising Peninsula residents who want to get home easier and faster from games in Candlestick Park.

"The time factor can be cut in half," said 49ers President Lou Spadia. "If people will take the North route off Harney Way.

Harney Way is the road which goes West from Candlestick Park. There is a North route and a South route off Harney Way.



Traffic studies show that the principal cause for post-game traffic congestion at the stadium and on the Bayshore Freeway South is that most of the traffic is headed for the more congested route — the South route off Harney Way.

To avoid that congestion, stay in the left lanes as you drive away from Candlestick Park on Harney Way and take the North route.

The North route loops onto the northbound lanes of the Bayshore Freeway and ultimately (about one mile) to Route 280 southbound.

About 70 per cent of the post-game traffic (11,000 automobiles) is Peninsula bound. And most of those automobils have been taking the South route off Harney Way. Hence the traffic jam(s).

What makes Route 280 South more appealing and faster is the recent completion of the big interchange with Highway 19 near the Crystal Springs Lakes between Belmont and San Mateo. This new interchange and subsequent new five miles of freeway have eliminated the last stop signs between San Francisco and San Jose.

Panthers Get Shutout; Still Unbeaten

By CHRISTOPHER STAVE
Post Sports Writer

Burlingame High's unbeaten football team is likely to face stronger opposition in the Mid-Peninsula League than it did in the practice season.

But right now the numbers are impressive. Three wins, no losses. And Friday's 16-0 shutout over visiting El Camino was the Panthers' second straight.

It was fitting that Burlingame's first score was a safety. Colt quarterback Pete Unsinn tried a third down pass from his own five, but before he unloaded Panther tackle Chris Mennis tripped him up in the end zone.

Despite the game running of Mike Evans, El Camino could sustain nothing against Burlingame.

Burlingame's own Wishbone was snapped by the Colts' stubborn front wall, but the Panthers clicked occasionally — and that was enough.

After a short punt and a major penalty moved the ball to the Colt 14, Panther fullback Lance Lawson cracked for five and Steve Mahlstedt swept right end behind tremendous blocking for nine yards and the score.

Shortly before the end of the half the Panthers again got good field position on a punt, moving from their own 44. Quarterback Mike Glafkides abandoned the running game and hit Ken Detweiler for two big aerial gains — the first went 25 yards to the Colt 26, and the second 24 yards to paydirt.

El Camino got good field position twice in the fourth quarter, both times after Burlingame fumbles. A drive starting from the Burlingame 31 was foiled when Panther lineman Ed Gueble forced — and recovered — a fumble.

Minutes later El Camino was back on the Panther 34, but quarterback Gene Montgomery, who had been under constant pressure since he entered the game in the second quarter, was intercepted by Burlingame's Gary Bertcevich.

El Camino is winless after three outings.

The Giants

is obviously because both pitchers are rising to tough competition from their respective opponents. If a guy is throwing a shutout against you, about the only way to beat him is to not only not give up any runs, but, to make sure, not to give up any hits.

We have often wondered if Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale would have been as spectacular as they were if the Dodgers had been a hitting team during their era. They almost HAD to throw shutouts to win. Of course, there's the other side of the issue which makes it a chicken-or-egg situation. Perhaps the reason why Dodger hitters never scored more than a run or two for Drysdale and Koufax was because they knew they didn't have to when they were pitching, and subconsciously let up.

SPEAKING of Koufax, you might think that it is he who holds the single season record for the highest average of strikeouts per complete game. But it isn't. It's Sam McDowell, who in 1965 averaged 10.71 K's for nine innings!

Despite his being out of the lineup for a couple of weeks, Reggie Jackson, at this writing, leads the majors in game winning hits. Willie Stargell leads the NL, only one ahead of Bobby Bonds, who is a leadoff batter, yet. Jose Cruz, a .225 hitting outfielder with St. Louis, is, amazingly, only one behind Bonds. Another amazing clutch hitter is Minnesota's Bobby Darwin, a .250 hitter who is second in the AL.

Detroit manager Joe Schultz cheapened John Hiller's major league record for number of saves in a single season last week when he inserted him in the last inning in a game in which Detroit had a 10 run lead and starter Joe Coleman was throwing a shutout. It put Hiller into a tie for the record at that time, but, in our opinion, robbed him of some dignity and certainly robbed Coleman of a chance for being credited with a shutout. (Ironically, Hiller allowed a run in that one inning.)

His pursuit of Babe Ruth's career homer record detracted from Henry Aaron's over-all hitting this year, which represented one of the best second halfs a player has ever had. Not long before the All-Star break, Henry was languishing in the .230's and not driving in many runs. He's close to .300 now, and had he been young enough to play nearly every day, would have finished this season with over 50 HR's, 115-120 RIB's and more than 100 runs scored.

Croon Injured; CSM Prospects Dismal

By FRED BAER
Post Correspondent

Prospects for a winning football season at College of San Mateo this fall aren't too bright at present.

Besides dropping an intersectional encounter with state-ranked Santa Monica, 21-7, Saturday afternoon, the Bulldogs lost their starting tailback for the season and left a lot of offensive problems unresolved.

Meanwhile Merritt, which opens Golden Gate Conference play at CSM this Saturday afternoon, doesn't loom as the breather originally expected after going 2-1 to date, including a weekend 46-12 romp over weak Napa.

Freshman Larry Croon out of San Mateo High had taken over the starting tailback job for the Bulldogs after leading CSM rushers in his debut against American River a week ago — San Mateo's lone win in three starts this year. But Croon was knocked out for the season with torn knee ligaments on his second carry Saturday at College Heights.

With two other Matean tailbacks sitting out the game with injuries, No. 4 man Greg Smith ended up doing most of the work — netting a creditable 83 yards on 18 carries. But his inexperience also hurt.

"Smith is a real quality running back," said CSM coach Steve Shafer. "But he hasn't seen too much work because he was No. 4."

Shafer wound-up spelling Smith with his starting fullback, Charles Cheadle. And the switch added to the confusion.

San Mateo turned the ball over five times. Three of those came in interceptions of three different Bulldog quarterbacks. No. 2 QB Chinto Fonseca didn't have a bad day, completing 11 of 20 attempts for 138 yards and CSM's only TD. In fact he was the only one who could sustain a drive.

The Bulldogs marched 56 yards in the second quarter after an illegal fair catch penalty, but were held on fourth and one at the Santa Monica five.

Then the visiting Corsairs marched 95 yards in 15 plays for the winning TD, John McLoughlin passing to Chuck Haywood for the final seven yards.

Santa Monica linebacker James Norton intercepted CSM's John Salomon on the first play of the game, leading to the Corsairs' first TD four plays later as John Michel hit Haywood from 25 yards out.

CSM started off the second half on the right foot, however, going 65 yards in ten plays with end (and defensive back) Jeff Yerian taking a 15-yard aerial from Fonseca for the lone Bulldog score.

San Mateo marched 78 yards in the fourth quarter with Rich Clarke making some sharp receptions before the Corsair defense pushed CSM back at the 12. Then Santa Monica controlled the ball for the clinching TD drive.

Santa Monica also embarassed bandless CSM with a dazzling 220 piece marching band and Coronette drill team. They also performed at yesterday's San Francisco 49er game.

Unbeaten Serra High Begins WCAL Season

By STEVE JOHNSON
Post Correspondent

Now Serra High's football team starts it all for real.

And what a start West Catholic Athletic League schedule makers have selected for the Padres, who are coming off their first undefeated practice season in six years.

Saturday night at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium, Serra (4-0) clashes head-on with likewise unbeaten St. Ignatius (3-0) in what promises to be one of the mightiest prep titanics of the year.

The Padres wrapped up their unblemished non-league slate Saturday at San Mateo High with an uninspired 14-0 win over gutty San Jose, which had been a pre-game four touchdown underdog.

"I think we might have been due for a bad game," said Serra coach Jess Freitas, whose squad was coming off an impressive 34-27 victory over highly-rated Woodside.

The Padre offense, with a combined total of almost 800 yards and 76 points in its two previous games, operated sporadically at best and turned the ball over five times.

That left things up to the defense. The Padre stop corps responded by holding the visitors to just 126 yards total offense, picking off three passes, and recording its second shutout.

Cornerback Randy Gomez contributed a score midway through the second quarter when he picked up a fumbled San Jose pitchout and scampered 23 yards untouched to the end-zone. Lineman Kevin O'Keefe spoiled SJ's only scoring opportunity by blocking a third quarter field goal attempt from the 27.

Fullback Jim Walsh was Serra's only offensive bright spot with 80 yards on ten carries and a 27-yard TD run minutes into the game.

"It was nice to play the way we did and still win," Freitas said. "Heck, we may have been lucky to win, considering the mistakes. There's one thing for sure — we've got all our toughest football ahead of us."

Westmoor Basketball Teams Win

Westmoor's C and D Basketball teams got off to good starts last week as they both pulled off victories over Jefferson and El Camino last Tuesday and Thursday.

Dan Williams and Gus Anagnostou led all scorers with 14 and 13 points respectively for the D's as they ran up a 43-11 victory over Jefferson.

In the home opener the D's never had a worry running to a 67-17 win. Dan Williams again led all scorers with 11 points while Joe Conway came off the bench to score seven.

Westmoor's C's had a rougher time getting started against their opponents but once started they never looked back. Cory Price and Brian Dorn led all scorers with a combined 35 points on the way to a 48-34 win over the Indians.

El Camino wasn't such a big problem either as Westmoor defeated them, 41-26. Dorn led all scorers with 16.

Uncautious Mills Tops Crusaders

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

Underneath that conservative blue-suited exterior there beats the heart of a true rakish devil. A real gambling spirit.

Mills High School coach Bob Field threw caution and conservatism to the Kezar Stadium wind Saturday afternoon, threw the dice on several key situations coming up winners each time and his Viking charges threw Riordan's Crusaders, 20-7, for the first Mills win in the six-year history of the practice confrontations.

With an impish grin on his face even when things seemed darkest (he could have known something?) Field turned loose two of the tougher runners around in quarterback Kurt McCracken and halfback Skip Strathearn and that combination staved off the expected-and-this - year-repelled Riordan rally in the final period.

As early as the first series Field faced an obvious punt situation on his own 12 with fourth down and two. He sent in a running play rather than a kicker. McCracken powered for the six and one knew things were going to be different this year. Twice more during the early going the Vikes went for the yardage rather than the punt and they all worked. Once even on a fake-punt pass.

The Vikings were thus able to keep the ball away from Riordan and its two potent offensive stars, sophomore fullback ack Mike Brown and a senior quarterback Tim Dudley. And with Riordan's line unable to cope with any of the Viking running attack it really was one of the more one-sided games of the series.

Any added impetus needed was supplied just before half. Leading 6-0 on McCracken's spinning 10-yard touchdown run, the Vikings regained possession on a fumble recovery by Dave Santos (one of two he nabbed) and drove for the goal. The Crusaders apparently had stopped McCracken on the one-yard line as time ran out in the half when one of the most obvious "cheap-shots" by Riordan's Jeff Williams incensed the officials, the fans and more than a few Viking linemen.

The officials ruled that the infraction meant one more play so, with McCracken hurt momentarily on the sidelines, Strathearn slammed over from the one-inch line for a 12-0 lead.

Santos's second fumble recovery right after the half set up a 30-yard scoring march culminated on McCracken's one-yard run.

Riordan, except for Brown thwarted on the ground, took to the air. But, unlike last year when the Vikings blew a 32-7 lead and lost 34-32, Mills held on allowing just one final-period score.

Mills	0	12	8	0	20
Riordan	0	0	0	7	7

Scoring: Mills—McCracken, 10 run (kick fails). Strathern, 1 run (kick fails). McCracken, 1 run (Strathern run). Riordan—Brown, 6 run (Jordan kick).

270,394 in County Can Vote

A total of 270,394 San Mateo County residents are registered and eligible to vote in the Nov. 6 special general election, County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church reported.

Registration is down nearly 40,000 from the 310,204 total for last year's November general election.

Republicans scored a slight percentage gain on Democrats in registraton, although registered Democrats outnumber registered Republicans by nearly 45,000.

There are 148,741 registered Democrats, 55 per cent of the total, and 103,896 registered Republicans, 38.4 per cent of the total registration. For last year's general election, the Democrats had 55.3 per cent of the total, and the Republicans 38.2 per cent.

Other designation in the latest registration: American Independent, 650 (0.2.4 per cent); Peace and Freedom, 897 (0.3.3 per cent); miscellaneous, 64 (0.1 per cent); declined to state, 16,146 (6 per cent).

Democrats have nearly a 2 to 1 margin over Republicans in registration in the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, 81,643 to 41,094. In the Twenty-sixth Assembly District, where, in April, 1972, Democrats outregistered Republicans for the first time in seven years, the Democrat registration advantage continues, with a margin of 67,098 to 62,802.

The Twenty-seventh District has a Democratic assemblyman, Louis Papapn, Dixon Arnett, a Republican, is the county's Twenty-sixth District assemblyman.

The Democratic registration in Congressman Leo J. Ryan's Eleventh Congressional District totals 126,948, as compared to a Republican registration of 74,449.

The San Mateo County portion of the Seventeenth Congressional District, represented by Paul N. McCloskey, has a registration of 29,447 Republicans and 21,793 Democrats. The Seventeenth District also includes an area of northern Santa Clara County extending from Palo Alto to San Jose.

Construction Begins

Westmoor Pool Now a Fact

As the ground-breaking behind the gyms continues, construction of a pool at Westmoor High School is now a fact. Work started Sept. 10 and should be completed by Oct. 1, 1974.

After some difficulties with architects, the joint committee of the Jefferson High School District and Daly City city council contracted the Kirker-Chapman Architectural firm to draw up plans for the swimming pool.

Later the plans were approved by the State Architects.

The construction of the pool was then opened for bidding. The JUHSD and the city council accepted the bid of $565,000 made by the Gil-Wynn construction company.

The base price of the pool was $525,000. The joint committee was working with a budget of $700,000.

Westmoor's swimming pool will be open to the public after school and on Saturdays and Sundays, unless occupied for school use.

The pool will be completely enclosed. Walls from both the girls' and boys' locker rooms will have to be knocked down in order to have a walkway to the swimming area.

Among other things, the pool will bring a few new sports like swimming and perhaps water-polo to the athletic program. No coed swimming is planned.

Westmoor Senior Awarded

Westmoor Senior Nina Berglund was recently awarded $500 in the "Seventeen Magazine's" National Scholarship program.

Five hundred girls across the country participated in the Youth Advisory Council during the past year.

Because of Nina's work as the "liaison" between the community and Seventeen Magazine, she was chosen as one of the eleven finalists in the scholarship competition.

As her final project, Nina was to start her own clothing store. Based on this assignment and her work throughout the year, she was awarded the third prize.

Nina received the news via telegram this summer while studying journalism at Northwestern University in Illinois.

Manufacturing 'Healthy' Says W.F. Economist

Harold L. Buma, a Wells Fargo Bank economics officer, says California's manufacturing sector is in good health.

"Both output and employment are on the rise with most industries in this sector experiencing a significant increase in sales and profits since late 1971," according to Buma, who is vice president and manager of the bank's Economics Department.

Buma said recently many manufacturers have a growing backlog of unfilled orders as demand, both domestic and international, has risen and continues strong.

"As a result, investment in new plants and machinery is climbing rapidly," he said. "The industry's recovery has been underway for about two years, and some additional growth is expected in 1974."

"Two years ago, slack demand caused manufacturing to cut back output, with a resultant loss of about 200,000 jobs and a drop in profits," Buma said.

"While much of the cutback was in the aerospace-electronics industry, other manufacturing activity was also affected."

BUMA SAID ... urp upswing in sales has ...abled manufacturers to re...e 70 per cent of the lost jobs. Gains have been registered in many types of business, with particular strength in non-defense areas such as apparel, textiles, auto assembly, machinery, electronics, metals, furniture and lumber.

The economist said there are four primary reasons for the rapid upturn:

A strong expansion in the U.S. economy and the consequent increase in the demand for California-made goods.

The recovery in the state's important aerospace-electronics industry. During the last two years, defense spending in the state increase by 17 per cent, from $5.3 billion to $6.2 billion. However, Buma added that "perhaps more important has been the noticeable expansion in the demand for civilian-oriented products such as commercial aircraft and industrial and consumer electronic goods.

The boom in consumer spending and in housing. Buma said auto sales have climbed from 874,000 in 1970 to a probable 1.2 million this year. This jump of 37 per cent has resulted in an employment gain of 16 per cent in auto assembly plants. The recovery in housing last year had a strong impact on the production and sale of home-related goods.

A dramatic increase in the demand from foreign markets. Buma said the devaluations of the dollar, accompanied by stronger export efforts, have greatly improved the competitiveness of California-made goods in foreign nations.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON

Captain Charles Set For Grand Opening

"Captain Charles" is shoreside in a big way — and your Bright Lighter means Nick Gust's splendid, new sea food restaurant by the same name. Our Tuesday afternoon tour of Captain Charles restaurant was an exciting experience, to say the very least. Our attention was immediately attracted to the plush carpeting, which wends its way to windowside tables and comfortable leather booths where a breathtaking view of the Pacific Ocean is afforded. Soft lighting accents the plush interior which includes a mid-dining room fountain, dock piling, and ship rigging that would make Davey Jones run for his locker. The cocktail lounge resembles a story book picture, what with it's two huge salt water tropical fish tanks which exploit the most exotic fish you'll ever behold (there's even an eel three feet long that zooms about the tank like a sleek racing car). The cocktail lounge is a restaurateur's dream. The backbar has a bow of a ship with a hand carved figurehead as in days of old. Backdrop this with a walled rock formation, a sun dial that defies comparison, plus attractive table lamps, and you can readily see that Nick Gust has gone all out to give the public one of the finest restaurants in the West offering a vista view from every table and booth. Dinner is served Wednesdays through Saturdays, 4 p.m. to 12 midnight; Sundays, 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. Although the restaurant is now open, the Grand Opening days are set for Friday and Saturday, October 5 and 6. A gourmet sea food menu will delight one and all. Congrats, Nick, you have another winner like Nick's restaurant and lounge, and The Moonraker.

Bay Meadows "Family Day" Big Success

Sunday racing, which was introduced this fall during the current thoroughbred meet at Bay Meadows, has provided scores of families with an introduction to the "Sport of Kings." In fact, the management of the bustling San Mateo racing plant has more or less designated every Sunday as being "Family Day." A special playground is provided for children; dad can catch the pro-football telecasts on several color sets placed conveniently throughout the complex; mom can enjoy a complete day away from her kitchen chores, as Bay Meadows offers several restaurants and snack bars for the whole family's dining pleasure. Plus, nine exciting thoroughbred races are on tap every Sunday, with post time for the first race being 1:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays post is 1 p.m. Bay Meadows also presents you with a free "How-to-Bet" booklet as an introduction to the races.

Plenty of Variety In Finocchio's Shows

Well-known singers and entertainers make up the big cast of female impersonators at Finocchio's. They deliver songs with plenty of style and aplomb, and the wardrobe is dazzling. One thing about the Finocchio's show, there is always plenty of variety. . . . South American dishes are a specialty at Torres Beach restaurant, located just south of Devil's Slide on Coast Highway One in Montara. Frank and Fannie Torres prepare some of the most flavorful delicacies which are not commonly found in these parts. You've missed something special in life if you haven't driven out to this beachfront spot to try them. The view of the Pacific Ocean from the dining room and lounge is breathtaking. . . . Park Avenue Tours makes it possible for you to enjoy the many refund packages to South Lake Tahoe, and also schedule charters — anywhere, any place, anytime. "Fun the Nevada Way" packages offer great transportation values in fares and cash bonuses. If you can't manage more than a few days' vacation, Park Avenue Tours also offers Greyhound Bus eight-hour "Turn-around" trips. What an exciting way to see the country and have a few hours of Nevada "jackpot" fun.

Scotty Campbell's Well Organized

Every member of the well-organized staff at Scotty Campbell's restaurant goes beyond the line of duty to see to the comfort and dining wishes of every patron. Is it any wonder that hostess-co-owner Mary Lou Fox feels confident of it's successful management when she takes off on short vacation visits to their family-operated summer resort in Wisconsin. This famous Redwood City dinner house reminds us of a smooth-running limousine — everything is in perfect running condition. Let Scotty Campbell's pamper your appetites with such specialties as Prime Rib of Beef (as you like it), Scampi sauteed in wine and butter, and Broiled Mahi Mahi Almondine (even the Islanders comment on its excellency) . . . We don't think any one man in the restaurant business has more titles than Enrico Romano, owner of Romano's Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, where some of the world's finest pizzas are prepared. He's been called the "Apostle of the Anchovie," the "Prince of Pizzas," and the "Chief of the Cheese." The latest report is that he has been crowned "Shah of Salami." We would like to add another: Leader of Lasagne."

"WELCOME, CAPTAIN CHARLES," could be what this fine feathered friend seems to be saying to the world as he sits on the rocks at Rockaway Beach flapping his wings in delight. In the background, Nick Gust's new gourmet seafood restaurant stands out like a beacon light on a dark night.

Vince Licata Member Greeting Committee

Vince Licata, prominent San Mateo restaurateur (Vince's Italian and Sea Food), is a "charter member" of the Royal Inn's greeting committee. Whenever a new hotel opens, you are sure to find Vincent on hand to help cut the ribbon. Meanwhile, back at Vince's popular restaurant domain you will find the chefs particularly expert with pastas of many varieties, and you will especially appreciate the Veal Scaloppini and Chicken Cacciatore. Understand Vince and his wife Nina will fly to Eugene, Oregon for the October 6 wedding of their nephew, Sal Piazza. You can count on this adventurous couple to take this opportunity to see some of the Oregon and Washington country . . . Lehr's Greenhouse restaurant and florist in San Francisco is a discovery for folks with a green thumb and an inquisitive appetite. Owner Murray Lehr tantalizes your palate with gourmet specialties at luncheon, dinner and Sunday brunch, all served in a beautiful garden filled with blooming flowers, lush green shrubs and towering banana palm trees . . . A belated Happy Birthday to San Matean Iva Newman, who was treated to a birthday luncheon at the Hyatt Regency in San Francisco by her lovely daughter Margaret.

Pine Brook Inn Has Award Winning Chef

Klaus Zander, chef/co-owner of the new Pine Brook Inn, located in the Carlmont Shopping Center, Belmont, has won countless culinary awards during his hotel and restaurant career. Prior to opening the Pine Brook Inn, Zander was executive chef at a major hotel in Hawaii. Many of his awards and press clippings are handsomely displayed on the wall just outside the Inn's charming dining room . . . Adrian "Red" Stickney, owner of the Shirt Tail restaurant in Palo Alto, has a fine eye for good antiques. His restaurants are graced by authentic examples of old Americana, such as the apothecary jars at the Shirt Tail. The rare antiques are nearly a century old . . . If they ever issue awards for expertise in tableside cooking, Phil Lehr's staff of waiters at the Steakery, in downtown San Francisco, would have to be top contenders. When Walter Maynes, head of the Whirlpool Corp. Peninsula Division, entertained company executives, he ordered 42 Steak Shallot dinners to be cooked at the Wellington Room tables. Maitre d'hotel Horst Meyer supervised the restaurant's entire staff for simultaneous cooking and serving.

S.S.F. Elks Drop Ban On Blacks

South San Francisco Elks Lodge has voted to delete the "whites only" membership clause from the Grand Lodge Constitution, Exalted Ruler Fred Daly said last week.

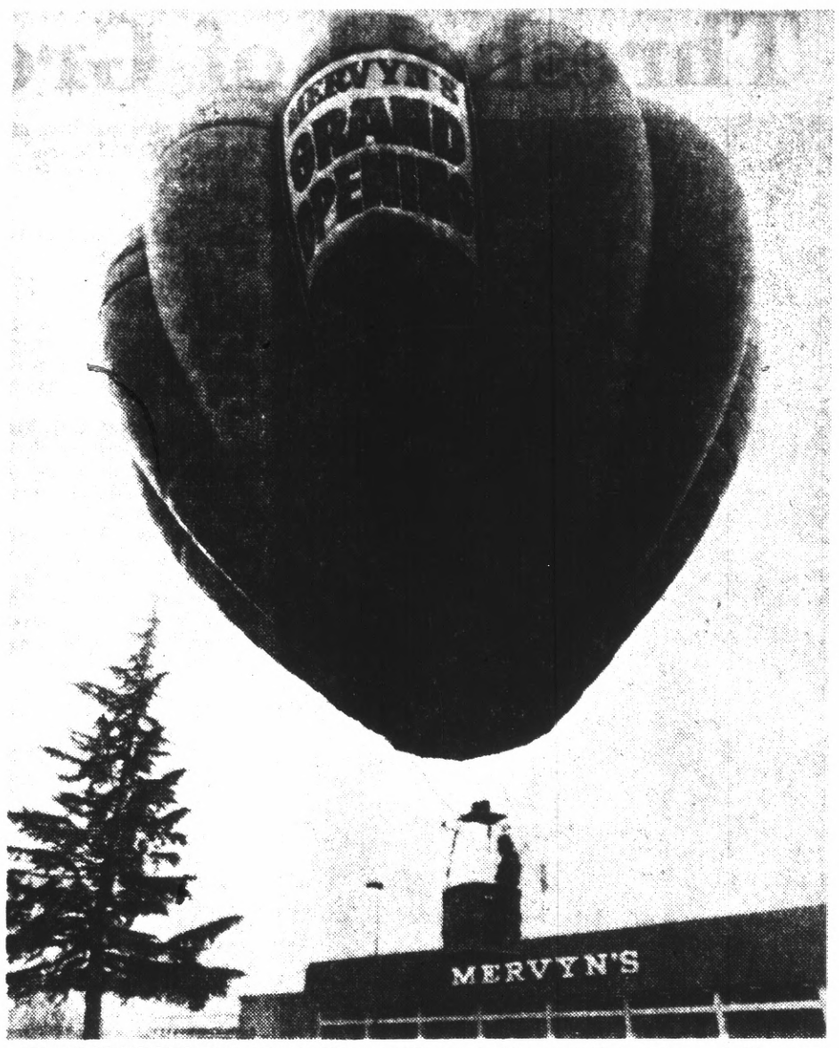
He did not know what the vote was, he said.

Deletion of the clause had been approved at the national Elks Lodge convention last July, but the vote must be ratified by the membership in a series of lodge-by-lodge votes.

The San Mateo Elks Lodge, as well as every other Bay Area lodge that has voted upon the measure has voted to delete the membership restriction, Daly said.

Pacifican Files Suit

A suit was filed in San Francisco Superior Court Sept. 27 by G. S. Dang Pacifica, former civil engineer with the San Francisco Water Department, asking for $1,000,000 damages because of his firing in 1972.



AN ASCENDING hot air balloon will mark the grand opening of Mervyn's department store at the Serramonte Shopping Center today at 9 a.m. Festivities will also include music, free gift drawings and helium filled balloons for youngsters.

South San Francisco

Stonegate Subdivision OK'd

South San Francisco planning commissioners have approved subdivision of a three-acre site on Stonegate Drive for construction of 47 townhouse units.

It will be the third unit of the Challenge Developments tract.

A major obstacle to approval was removed when Challenge provided emergency exits.

The planners also approved a use permit and variance for a tire recapping industrial building on Sylvester and Associated roads, near East Grand Avenue. The variance will permit the firm to build without a rear setback.

The planners concluded the evening dwelling on the objection raised at a City Council meeting, to Joseph Haggerty's requested rezoning for a Westborough medical center. Councilman objected that rezoning violated the general plan, which had been revised to classify the 1.28-acre site on Westborough and Callan boulevards from medium-high density residential to neighborhood commercial.

Former planner, Daniel Pass, had recommended denial of the rezoning. However, city-wide support for the rezoning at the planning and council levels resulted in approval of the request. The rezoning application, however, was returned to the Planning Commission when it was found to violate the general plan. It will now go back to Council.

APPROVAL of a brick fireplace at 3678 Bettman Way, in Westborough, marked a precedent. The planning commissioners have clamped down on remodelings in Westborough since the entire subdivision is a planned development. However, the planners agreed that the addition of the fireplace, which will project beyond the existing outside wall at the rear of the house, was aesthetic. It was approved.

Artists' Series Scheduled

The twentieth anniversary season of the Artists' Series at San Francisco State University opens Oct. 14, at 3 p.m. in the McKenna Theater at 1600 Holloway Ave. with a recital by the Tel Aviv String Quartet with Yona Ettlinger, clarinetist.

The performance is a return of the noted group. They have not been heard in the Bay Area for three years.

With Yona Ettlinger, the solo clarinetist of the Israel Philharmonic as assisting artist, they will perform the Clarinet quintet of Mozart, K. 581; Beethoven's Quartet Opus 59, No. 1 "Rasoumovsky," and the Third Quartet by Bela Bartok.

The Tel Aviv String Quartet was formed in 1959. They have appeared over Israel, Europe and North America.

Sponsored by the Chamber Music Center, established by the May Treat Morrison Foundation, the concerts are offered free to the public. The noted cellist, Laszlo Varga, Professor of Music, directs the series.

The next program is scheduled on Nov. 18. It will be an appearance of vocal chamber ensemble from England, the King's Singers.

This is a group of six singers, two countertenors, a tenor, two baritones, and a bass. They will present Italian and French madrigals as well as works by Penderecki, Poulenc and Malcolm Williamson.

Back to School Night Held at FDR

Franklin D. Roosevelt School held a back to school night last week. Parents met in the multi use room for a brief meeting where the teachers and board members were introduced. The teachers then went to their classrooms where parents had a chance to visit teachers. Refreshments were served at the end of the meeting.

F. Jose de Larios

Judge Opposes Court Merger

Municipal Judge F. Jose de Larios told the South San Francisco Chamber of Commerce last week that he has been unable to find out how consolidation of the county's three municipal courts will save money without cutting services.

Eight of the nine municipal judges have voted against consolidation without a thorough study of the proposal.

Consolidation, he indicated, is being pushed by some of the county supervisors on the basis that it would:

—Enable a Daly City person who is cited in the Redwood City area to pay his fine in South San Francisco.

—Enable a person who wishes to contest a charge to have the trial in the court most convenient to him.

—Provide efficiencies by provision of central archives, courier service, uniform sentencing procedures, and computerization of records.

—Enable the courts to shift a judge to another court if the workloads get too great in one court.

The judge contested each of these allegations.

He explained that the county's nine municipal judges meet once a month and work out such procedures as uniform sentencing. There are three judges apiece in South San Francisco, San Mateo and Redwood City. These meetings provide many of the advantages of consolidation, without the disadvantages.

The courts already have a courier service, and a central information service.

Shifting judges around would be difficult, he said, because there are no judges to spare, and would be none under consolidation, since they all have full workloads. He added that they are able to keep up with their workload, at present, unlike many other local counties.

In order to make it possible for a person to pay his fine in any of the three courts, he said, it would be necessary either to keep complete records of each court in every court, or to install highly sophisticated, and thereby expensive computers — even under consolidation.

If a Daly City person cited in Redwood City decides to contest the case in South San Francisco, that may be more convenient to the defendant, but it produces a serious police problem, necessitating a Redwood City officer coming up to South San Francisco. This officer would thus be out of commission as a policeman for the better part of a day.

The judge admitted that the San Mateo Municipal Court has no room to expand.

Court Upholds Property Ruling

The State District Court of Appeal has upheld a San Mateo County Superior Court ruling that community property should be equally divided between an unmarried couple who split up after living together for eight years.

The original decision was handed down in 1971 by Superior Court Judge Robert E. Carey in Redwood city.

It involved the filing for a "nullity of marriage" by Paul A. Cary, formerly of Newark.

Judge Carey declined to grant the nullity, since there had been no marriage, but did order the equal division of community property between Cary and Janet Forbes, the woman with whom he had been living in Newark. Cary filed for the nullity after the couple split up and he moved to San Mateo county.

Cary appealed the court's decision on the split of community property. In upholding the lower court, the District Court of Appeal stated:

"The criteria for the application of the rule we apply to case before us is much more than that of an unmarried living arrangement between a man and a woman."

The ruling, in effect, extended the state's Family Law Act of 1970 to cover not only valid marriages, but also those relationships where both parties actually know they are not married.

It was noted in the decision that Cary and Miss Forbes had purchased a home and other property, borrowed money, obtained credit, filed joint income tax returns and had four children, all the while representing themselves as married.

rocky crags in its descent to the valleys.

The railroad was to haul produce, mainly artichokes as well as cattle from the ranches all the way from Santa Cruz to the San Franc'sco markets.

The tracks never reached Santa Cruz, Councilwoman Grace McCarthy, another student of Pacifica history, informed the writer, suggesting the impasse was most likely due to impassable terrain.

Years later, the tracks fell into the ocean during a landslide. The railroad failed in 1918 shortly after the First World War.

The Ocean Shore Railway Express office still stands at the top of Shelter Cove on Pacifica's San Pedro bluff. It is presently inhabited by earth people of whom one might speculate — cast off suburban living.

Mori's Point on scenic Pedro Point destroyed by fire in 1966, was a favorite restaurant and gin mill during prohibition. It was operated by Jack Mori, son of the rancher Mori.

During a running gun fight on the coast with prohibition agents, the restaurant was boarded up.

In 1932, it reopened as a legitimate restaurant operated by other members of the family, Ray and Marie Mori.

Through these years, the Quarry at Rockaway Beach was Pacifica's major industry.

Another episode of Pacifica history was revealed in a story run in the "Pacifica Tribune" which told of a World War II camp for aliens.

The Tribune told of a personal tragedy which occurred in Pacifica. It left deep wounds on the community.

Felix Piltz, a resident of Vallemar (now a Pacifica district) who worked as a foreman at the quarry, was detained there as a German national.

The camp was located in Sharp Park, according to the Tribune.

"After the war, Piltz and his wife resumed normal life in the community. Both are now dead," the newspaper story stated.

In 1953, builder Andy Oddstad opened the Linda Mar subdivision. It grew rapidly until 1,500 families were there.

The citizens of the older communities such as Sharp Park and Pedro Valley, Rockaway Beach fought to keep their independence and not incorporate not wishing to be ruled by Linda Mar and Pacific Manor, another subdivision which had appeared on the scene.

Over the name for the new city, meetings broke up in disagreement.

SeaVue won at early incorporation sessions. It was suggested by Ray Logan, owner of the SeaVue Theater, still operating is Pacifica Manor. Logan was chairman of the Citizen's Committee meeting.

Citizens became militant and active in the cause of incorporation by the rape of San Bruno.

San Bruno, which already had annexed Pacific Heights, announced its plans to annex more of the coastside.

The final push for incorporation was supplied by Daly City which wanted to use the Bernardi ranch to the rear of the Linda Mar development for a garbage dump, Bill Drake noted.

Among leaders in the incorporation were Jean and Frank Fassler and Carl and Grace McCarthy whose former summer reidences had been converted into permanent year-round homes.

Twenty-six candidates ran for city council. Mrs. Jean Fassler, who became interested in incorporation through her work in P-TA and the schools, was among them.

Leaders in the incorporation struggle became the first councilmen — Harold Feyge, George Mason, Don Miller and Gerry Schumacher.

Jean Fassler, who could be regarded as a spear bearer in women's liberation, said that the men encouraged her to run and were most generous to women in their support and appointments.

San Francisco Mayor George Christopher was among state and county dignitaries at the inaugural ball attended by 500 at the Vallemar School followed by a dance at Nick Gust's Rockaway Beach restaurant with its new $110,000 addition.

Attorney Julian Cohn, who practices law in Pacifica in the Eureka Square building, gave Pacifica its name.

During a heated debate during an Oct. 26, 1956 meeting, the statue of Pacifica at the Treasure Island World's Fair flashed through his mind. And that was how Pacifica was born.

Ray Higgins donated his Coastside Hall formerly Sharp Park School which became the site of the present City Hall.

OCEAN FISHING PIER

Rising out of the ocean near Beach Boulevard in Sharp Park is a magnificent concrete ocean fishing pier, all 1,060 feet of it. Beyond the pier at the ocean floor, deep sea divers are busy connecting the 1,400 foot ocean outfall line.

This $2,225,000 pier is expected to bring ocean fisherman from all over California and the world to Pacifica. Especially now when there is a heavy run of striped bass.

The pier stands astride wooden stilts put in place by a mechanical orange spider. This mobile engineering marvel was invented by Dick Smith, president of Healy Tibbitts, marine engineering firm which contracted to build the pier and outfall line.

Herbert Hendershot, project engineer, adjusting his hard hat as he sat in the trailer next to the ocean at the end of the day said:

"Time we're heading for is Sept. 20."

Standing by all day is Floyd Weich, helicopter pilot for Antro Copter, San Jose.

He flies the workers by helicopter 1,500 feet away. Why the expense of a helicopter?

"Because it takes only five minutes one way," Weich explained. "By boat in a heavy sea, it can delay the men a half hour to 45 minutes, one way," he added.

It won't be long before Pacificans will be dancing on the pier.

Stepmber is the target date, too, for the completion of the new $5,000,000 sewage treatment plant covering an entire block along Beach Boulevard.

The treatment plant is built in conjunction with the pier and ocean outfall line.

Handsomely constructed in Spanish Mission style, one would never guess it was a sewage treatment plant set to treat six million gallons a day to be separated, refined and carried to the ocean outfall one-half mile away.

"It's the most beautiful, up-to-date plant in the world," jubilantly proclaims Mayor Aubrey Lumley, a bachelor in his early thirties.

Nov. 22, that flag-waving date when Pacifica became a city, has been tentatively set by the mayor for the dedication.

Pacifica seems "gung ho" to become the Bay Area's leading beach and recreation area.

Violently opposing more growth are environmentalists who believe in "keeping Pacifica scenic."

Mayor Lumley offered that they are not looking at the revenue a city needs.

City Hall is bustling. Philip W. Mayo, building official, reports 1972 was the banner year for building totaling $19,000,000. In 1973, building dropped off since the coastal initiative temporarily halted at least two of the projects.

However, plans are under way for the new 380 or Portola Freeway to start at Rockaway Beach and wind through the hills as the new ocean to airport highway.

Supporters claim it will reduce accidents as Sharp Park Road already is carrying twice the traffic it can bear.

Sharp Park opponents declare it physically divides the town further.

To be completed on July, 1974 is the $25,000,000 Gypsy Hill condominium, townhouse and shopping complex perched atop Sharp Park hill.

People learn to live with their environment in Pacifica.

Children are taught early about undertows and ocean currents. Everyone learns to adjust to the fog creeping in almost daily and to enjoy the sunny summer months in September, October and November.

Compared to other Peninsula cities, sports are more active and daring. Surfers bob on five-foot waves, fishermen cast out in the surf for striped bass or salmon; or reel in their catch from a boat. Watch on a Sunday afternoon, sky flying, in which men and teenage boys equipped with kites jump from the mountain to glide into Sharp Park schoolyard. Teenage girls and boys canter over hills and beach.

Something shivery for an outsider to contemplate is Pacifica's San Andreas School which is built right on San Andreas Fault.

Pacifican Dennise Riewert, 17, recalls going to a school dance there "the day the big earthquake was supposed to happen and the coast was to vanish into the sea."

The encounter with Dennise and her brother, Scott, 16, occurred on a Sunday afternoon at Studio 70 Community Cable TV.

Located on Sharp Park's Francisco Boulevard, the high school volunteers were rehearsing a comedy skit, "Nobody Wants Soap Opera Comics," written by a contemporary, Dennis Dale.

Grady Hesters is manager of the TV station in operation 24 hours a day.

Young people, average age of 23½ years and their young families, have joined the early settlers at this ocean crossroad.

Salada Beach's one-room school house has multiplied into 17 elementary schools in order to educate the largest school-age population on the San Francisco Peninsula next to East Palo Alto.

There are two high schools, Oceana and Terra Nova and for students who wish to go on in their studies, there is Skyline College, San Bruno.

Living side by side near the ocean, in the hills and valleys and situated on rocky points is a cross-section of people to enrich a burgeoning culture — Italians, Portugese, Chinese, Jews, Anglo-Americans, Mexican-Americans, Blacks, Eastern Europeans and a few Arabs.

Lest one get the mistaken impression that Pacifica is made up entirely of young families, the community is balanced by a natural complement of middle-aged and senior residents.

Recently completed was a new $1,132,300 apartment building for senior citizens on Crespi Drive in Linda Mar.

Pacficians who have a parent or parents living there say "rents are very reasonable."

Pacifica also has two convalescent hospitals each with 65 beds — Linda Mar and Pacifica. The latter is located on the beach within the lulling sound of the surf on the Esplanade at Pacific Manor, one of the city's first subdivisions.

Daily, Pacificans, seven-eighths of them, pour out of their $20,000 or more homes and $150 and up apartments to commute to their jobs. Most of them work in San Francisco; many are employed at San Francisco International Airport and still others, in San Mateo County.

The remaining 12 per cent work in their home town as shopkeepers; some work in construction for Challenge Developments, Inc. and in the quarry for Rhodes and Jamieson, Ltd., Pacifica's oldest industry.

The Laguna Salada School District, not surprisingly, with its 520 employes, is the largest non-manufacturing employer.

Of the 16,824 registered voters in the 1972 election, 13,523 voted. The breakdown is: McGovern, 6,667; Nixon, 5,892; American Independent, 390; Peace and Freedom, 253.

Proposition 20 won by a resounding 1,263 votes: 7,103 for the Coastal initiative and 5,840 against it.

Whatever is the politics of Pacificans, their clashes on progress, they have one common bond — the Pacific Ocean.

It is the Pacific Ocean — its blue-green surf crashing against the reefs and rugged coastline that charts Pacifica's destiny.

Redevelopment Plans May Be Scrapped

entire matter here and now," he said.

The city has spent three years: conducted numerous studies on almost every aspect of social and economic life in the "older" section of the city; budgeted nearly $200,000 and held numerous public hearings on this issue.

Was it wasted officials were asked?

"I don't think so," Lycett responded. "It has shown us there are certain deficiencies in housing, traffic flow and open space in the area."

Councilman Stewart agreed.

"This series of studies, and the input from citizens will, in the long run, prove invaluable in providing better public facilities (in this section of our city)," Stewart said.

He was, however, still convinced that redevelopment was needed in some areas.

But he did not elaborate, except to say the matter would be further discussed at a later council meeting.

"I want to see something done in this area, but I honestly don't know how to go about it at this time. I feel Mission Street might be our first consideration in future discussion of this matter," Stewart said.

Redevelopment was first proposed in Daly City three years ago. It immediately met with stiff opposition from residents in the eastern sector of the city.

First the council appointed itself as the Redevelopment Agency. It next held a series of hearings and appointed a 25-member citizens advisory committee made up of citizens from throughout the city.

After a series of meetings the CAC came back to the council-agency with its report. This report was accepted and turned over to the city's Planning Commission which held meetings over a three-month period before reaching its decision, amidst a stormy name-calling session, to hand it over to the council with approval of a project area.

The project area adopted by the commissioners was an abbreviated one from that proposed by the CAC.

Two weeks ago the council, with Lycett and Stewart absent, moved to close public hearing on amendments to the general plan, and stated a decision would be forthcoming this week.

That decision to adopt the amendments, was passed 2-1, with Lycett and Stewart abstaining after receiving instructions they could not vote on the matter from City Atty. Al Polonsky, and with Giammona and Kyriakis voting for adopting. Hupf voted against the measure.

Vonnegut Play at SF State

The comedy-fantasy, "Happy Birthday, Wanda June," opens the new subscription series of plays by the San Francisco State University's Theater Arts department. The initial performance is Oct. 12, at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater of the Creative Arts building at 1600 Holloway Ave.

The Kurt Vonnegut play will be staged subsequently Oct. 13, 18, 19 and 20. Admission is $2.50 and $2. The University this season, its twentieth, is offering a subscription rate. Four of its productions are scaled at $8.50 for seats in the center sections of either the Little Theater or the large McKenna Theatre, and $6.50 for the side areas.

Troubadors Give Free Stage Shows

Presently engaged in vigorous rehearsals for live stage shows booked for gratis performances at San Mateo and San Francisco County hospitals and convalescent homes, The Troubadors of the St. Francis Heights Dance and Music Guild have accepted a new activity.

Katherin "Taffy" Wheeler, instructor at the Daly City dance studio, said The Troubadors have been entered in the Columbus Day parade, Oct. 7; the Veterans Day Parade, Oct. 21; and the BART Opening Celebration, Nov. 3. Highlight of the BART festivities is a colorful parade, led by Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco.

The procession, a ten-block affair, terminates at 26th Street, but The Mayor and his entourage will proceed to Glen Park and Ocean Avenue stations and thence to Daly City, where a huge civic program, highlighted by a sumptuous outdoor barbeque will be held under the chairmanship of Daly City Councilman Robert Stewart.

The Troubadors are scheduled to give gratis shows for the Senior Citizens of the San Francisco Housing Authority and two appearances at the French Hospital in San Francisco, in November.

The Christmas schedule includes Yule Shows at the Little Sisters of the Poor and Laguna Honda Home for the Aged.

Mrs. Trudy Scanlon, director of the St. Francis Heights Dance and Music Guild said serious consideration will be given any worthy San Mateo County institution that needs Christmas holiday entertainment.

She may be reached at the studio, 405 Lakeshire Dr., Daly City 94015, phone 992-1934 or at her daytime office, 282-1334.

TROUBADORS—Tommy Martinez, 12, and his six-year-old sister, Nicole, are members of The Troubadors, a Daly City song-and-dance group which will participate in Fall parades and perform live stage shows for underprivileged and handicapped during Christmas week. The Martinez children reside with their parents in Pacifica. Studio of The Troubadors is at 405 Lakeshire Drive, Daly City.

Senators Praise Finance Bill

Senators Anthony Beilenson (Dem-Los Angeles) and Arlen Gregorio (Dem-San Mateo) hailed as an "historic break-through" the passage of their public financing bill, SB 234, by the Senate Elections and Reapportionment Committee last week. The vote was 6-2.

SB 234 provides for reimbursement of qualified campaign expenses in general elections on a cents-per-registered voter basis. Major party candidates for State Senate, for example, could receive up to $48,000 and for statewide office up to $375,000, except for gubernatorial candidates who could receive up to $1.6 million. No candidate could accept private contributions from any one group or individual in excess of $100. A summary of the bill is attached.

"Our present system of campaign financing is outmoded. It was designed for the 19th not the 20th century," Gregorio said. "Public financing of campaigns will free candidates and legislators from the demeaning business of fundraising and will do more than anything I can think of to strengthen public confidence in the integrity of our process of government."

Senator Beilenson noted, "There is no realistic way to raise enough private funds to run an effective campaign without accepting large contributions. These contributors unfortunately, often have undue influence over the outcome of legislation and ready access to the legislator which the general public does not share."

SB 234 was coauthored by 20 other legislators of both parties.

The bill now goes to the Senate Finance Committee where it probably will be heard in January.
